PITTSBURGH FLOOD RECEDES

President Will Leave Tonight On New Cruise

Heading South For Fishing Trip In Gulf Of Mexico

WILL SPEND TWO WEEKS ON OUTING

Will Go To New Orleans By Special Train—Boats Are Waiting

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 27.—While congress continued to wrestle with his court reorganization proposal, President Roosevelt packed his bags today preparatory to heading south tonight for the Gulf of Mexico and a two-week fishing cruise.

The president was in good spirits as he assembled the fishing tackle with which he hopes to catch a variety of game fish. The White House continued to express confidence that ultimately the executive will win his court fight—although it may be well into the summer before a vote is reached.

Leaves Tonight.

Mr. Roosevelt's special train will leave here late tonight for New Orleans where the White House yacht Potomac and three destroyers are waiting to take him on his spring jaunt off the Texas coast.

Enroute south, a stop will be made at Biloxi, Miss., from which point the president will motor to Gulfport before reboarding his train, pausing for a visit at Jefferson Davis' home.

Elliott Roosevelt, the president's second son, who will accompany the fishing party, and Gov. Richard Leche of Louisiana were to meet the train at Gulfport. Senator Pat Harrison (D) of Mississippi is accompanying the executive from Washington to Mississippi.

Brief Program.

Few definite engagements have been made in connection with the trip. The president has told all callers he is intent "on only two things—fishing and sleeping." Upon reaching New Orleans Thursday, he has tentatively agreed to attend a luncheon, witness dedication of a WPA park project known as Roosevelt Mall and motor briefly around the city before heading out into the gulf.

But by mid-afternoon of the 29th, Mr. Roosevelt will be aboard the destroyer Moffett, which will transfer him to the Potomac out in the gulf. The destroyer Decatur will act as a second convoy.

No Danger At Cincinnati Of Another Flood

Ohio River Expected Will Not Go Over 40 Feet At Cincinnati, 52 Feet Flood Stage

(International News Service)

CINCINNATI, O., April 27.—Little danger was seen today by weather bureau officials and army engineers of a recurrence of the January flood here, although heavy rains were drenching the upper Ohio valley.

The only danger was the possibility of torrential rains here before the week-end, but weather charts showed no present signs of such rain.

A crest of 35 to 40 feet was expected here Friday or Saturday. Flood stage is 52 feet. The river now is slightly under the 30-foot stage.

Ex-G-Man Not To Be Married

Purvis And Miss Jarratt Have Indefinitely Postponed Their Wedding

NO STATEMENTS MADE IN CASE

(International News Service)

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 27—Glamorous Janice Jarratt, "most photographed girl in the world," and her ex-G-man fiancee, Melvin Purvis, were far apart today—while their marriage, scheduled to have taken place this Thursday, was "indefinitely postponed."

Unexpected as the trapping of public enemy John Dillinger by Purvis and his department of justice aides was the laconic announcement last night by a spokesman of Miss Jarratt's family:

"Mrs. Devereaux Jarratt, Miss Jarratt's mother, announced to the press that the wedding of her daughter to Melvin Purvis has been postponed indefinitely. Miss Jarratt cannot be reached and has no statement to make."

Argument Reported

Friends, however, told of an argument between the two, over what they understood was Miss Jarratt's tardiness for an engagement.

Miss Jarratt, former photographer's model, motion picture actress and member of one of San Antonio's most aristrocratic families, was unconfirmedly reported to be in seclusion on a South Texas ranch. Her dashing groom-to-be was reported enroute to the west coast on a fast train.

No authoritative explanation was given for postponing of what had promised to be this winter resort

Virginia-Maryland Are Scene Of Floods

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Flood waters of Maryland and Virginia rivers today inundated many sections, forcing thousands of persons to quit their homes and causing widespread damage to property.

In the nation's capital many sections along the waterfront were under water, including Bolling Field, the Anacostia naval air station and parts of Hains Point, Potomac and Rock Creek Parks.

The business section, the White House and Federal buildings were not menaced.

Rivermen expected the Potomac to reach its crest here late tonight but its floods, they said, will be less devastating than that of March, 1936 when sandbags were erected to prevent the water from entering the business section.

Hits Lighting System

The rising waters of the Rappahannock caused the electric lighting system in Fredericksburg, Va., to fail at 9:30 p. m. last night. Forty-five houses were flooded and three large gasoline storage tanks, undermined by the water, toppled over, adding another menace to this historic town.

Estimate 1000 Dead In "Most Appalling" Rebel Air Massacre

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

LONDON, April 27.—Hundreds of men, women and children were literally roasted alive and torn to pieces by explosives and drilling machine gun bullets today in a savage rebel air raid on the Basque city of Guernica, according to a Reuter dispatch.

The new agency reported the ancient and picturesque city, one-time Basque capital, was reduced to a blazing mass of ruins.

It stated casualties were "uncountable" and termed the air raid the "most appalling" in modern warfare.

The London Daily Express said the city was "completely gutted" along with three surrounding towns situated 25 miles from beleaguered Bilbao. This account said total deaths were estimated at 1,000.

Countryside Ablaze

The "whole countryside was ablaze" and 5,000 perons were left homeless by the insurgent air attack, the Express stated.

"An uncounted number of German planes" for three and a half hours roared over Guernica in groups of seven, accompanied by large numbers of fighting craft, the Reuter Dispatch said.

Shenango Reaches High Stage Today

Only Foot And A Half From Flood Stage This Morning As Neshannock Recedes

While the water in Neshannock Creek started to subside last evening, the Shenango river continued to rise, and this morning stood at at stage of 14.65 feet, only a foot and a half away from flood stage.

It was unlikely that the water would overflow here, however, as there was a cessation of the steady downpour late yesterday. Farther up the stream, where the land is lower, it had overflowed its banks it was reported. Near the Taylor farm at Pulaski, the water was over the road, where it had backed up in a creek at that point.

City Of Guernica Bombed By Rebels

BILBAO, Spain, April 27.—Eight hundred persons were killed today when rebel planes launched a fierce aerial attack on the ancient basque city of Guernica, according to reports received here. Ten thousand persons fled to the hills.

Canadian Flood Causes Damage

Four Are Reported Dead, More Than 10,000 Homeless At London, Ontario

TRAIN PLUNGES INTO STREAM

(International News Service)

LONDON, April 27—Flood waters from the raging Thames river left four persons dead today, more than 10,000 homeless and an unestimated amount of damage.

Two trainmen were killed as their engine and first three cars of their train plunged into the south branch of the river at Beachville. A doctor rushing to the scene of the train accident was drowned as his car plunged over an embankment and the fourth death came when an unidentified man was drowned at the junction of the north and south branches of the river in London as his boat capsized.

The dead in the train wreck were engineer Malcolm Isbister and fireman Norman Aiken, and the train derailed was the crack Canadian National Chicago-Montreal express. None of the passengers was injured. Dr. J. H. MacDonald, rushing to the train wreck, was drowned when his car was swept over an embankment by flood waters near Beachville.

Juniata Goes On Rampage

Six Feet Above Flood Stage At Lewistown—Water In South Main St.

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, April 27.—The "blue" Juniata, muddied and swollen by heavy rains, today gave Central Pennsylvania its first taste of the flood menace being felt in western counties.

Six feet over flood stage at Lewistown, the Juniata snaked southward to wipe out a temporary bridge between Mifflin and Mifflintown, carrying with it pipe lines constituting Mifflin's primary water supply outlet. Newport was within inches of partial inundation. Numerous homes above Mifflintown were flooded.

Lewistown's South Main street was under two feet of water backed up by the Kishacoquillas creek, and about a thousand families in the adjacent area began shifting belongings to upper floors. On both sides of the city high water flooded the William Penn highway, closing traffic east and west.

Committee To Ponder Report On Court Plan

Senate Judiciary Committee Starts Secret Sessions On Court Proposal

CLAIMS CONFLICT ON LIKELY ACTION

Senators Ashurst And Van Nuys Holds Opposite Views On Outcome

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Conflicting claims of victory and defeat were made today by friends and foes of President Roosevelt's supreme court plan as the senate judiciary committee met to pass upon it in secret session.

Administration leaders hoped the committee would report the plan favorably within two weeks. Opposition leaders, however, predicted the committee would fail to recommend its enactment and that ultimately the senate itself would defeat it.

To Decide Procedure

Two questions were to be decided by the committee before it began deliberation on the merits of the plan. One was whether to divorce the supreme court features from the remainder of the plan to inject new blood into the lesser federal judiciary. The other was whether to open the program to amendments.

A quick poll of the committee indicated both questions would be decided in the affirmative. A majority of members appeared to favor action separately on the president's request for authority to appoint six new justices to the supreme court if those justices now over 70 years of age fail to retire. It also appeared to favor committee consideration of amendments and compromises—instead of a straight out vote, aye or no, on the whole program.

Three compromises have been proposed within the committee. One by Senator Hatch (D) of New Mexico, would authorize appointment of "one new justice per year." Another by Senator McGill (D) of Kansas, would authorize appointment of two new justices every four years. A third by Senator McCarran (D) of Nevada, would increase the supreme court's membership outright to eleven.

All compromises undoubtedly will be defeated in committee. They ap-

State Mobilizes For New Flood Emergency; Ponders Flood Control

By TONY S. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, April 27.—As Pennsylvania mobilized its agencies for another flood emergency the 132nd legislature today stood ready to complete another step on a long-range flood control program, currently delayed by lack of congressional action.

Urged by anxious constituencies to "do something", the senate prepared to pass finally the Weiss resolution to permti floating of a $50,000,000 bond issue for flood control through constitutional amendment.

But the lawmakers were helpless to take action on an appropriation measure which would furnish $5,000,000 for an immediate federal-state construction program in the Ohio river watershed. Even if enacted, the measure would provide funds which could be spent merely for the purchase of land and payment of damages. Money for actual construction must be supplied by the federal government under the provision of the national omnibus flood control act.

New York City Judge Attacked

Municipal Court Justice Is Stabbed In Back While On Street

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, April 27.—Municipal Court Justice John Francis O'Neil, 50, was probably fatally wounded by a mysterious, knife-wielding assassin on a Greenwich Village street corner near his home today. At St. Vincent's hospital, little hope was held for his recovery.

Judge O'Neil, who is married, staggered into the hospital, bleeding from knife wounds in the back, and collapsed in the arms of an interne. He gasped out that while waiting for a downtown bus on the street corner, a man in a tan topcoat approached silently from behind.

Assailant Unknown

The unknown assailant—Judge O'Neil did not know whether he was a white man or a negro—stabbed him twice in the middle of the back, then fled.

Forty detectives immediately threw a dragnet around the neighborhood. Judge O'Neil was bound for Central Muncipal Court where he was to sit today when the assassin struck.

Flood Crest Of Ohio River Races On To Wheeling

Rivers Reach Over 35 Foot Stage At Pittsburgh And Start To Recede

EXPECT FALL WILL BE QUITE RAPID

Eleven Persons Are Reported Dead As Result Of Raging Floods

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

Death, destruction, and suffering today rode the crest of flood waters raging down the Ohio river valley in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio, along the historic Rapahannock in Maryland and Virginia and in Ontario, Canada.

At least 11 persons were dead and five others were feared to have met a similar fate. Thousands were homeless. Property damage mounted as the muddy waters swirled over still larger areas.

At Washington, President Roosevelt called an emergency White House conference of the new flood control board created during the recent disastrous Ohio and Mississippi river valley floods. He placed control of all federal relief activities in the hands of the board.

Three to four thousand residents of Wheeling Island, opposite Wheeling, W. Va., a perennial target of floods, were evacuated from their homes to higher ground as the flood waters approached from Pittsburgh. The city was preparing for a crest of 48 feet, 12 feet above flood level. Lowlying river front streets of Wheeling began disappearing under the turgid waters as rain continued to drench the valley.

Receding At Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh's fourth major flood in 13 months was receding, pouring its destructive waters down the Ohio toward Wheeling. After an over-night siege, the waters reached a crest of 35.1 feet, more than 10 feet above the 25 foot flood stage, and began falling.

As the rivers rushed southward from Pittsburgh, they left in their wake several hundred homeless, several thousand temporarily out of work because of factory shutdowns, and considerable property damage. Loss at Pittsburgh was far less than anticipated. The city was mobilized for the impending disaster and met it squarely and efficiently.

Loss At Johnstown

Johnstown, Pa., counted a loss of $100,000. Sharpsburg, Etna and McKees Rocks, low-lying Pittsburgh suburbs each had several hundred homeless. Other river communities had smaller numbers.

At least four died in Pennsylvania and four in Ontario, two in Maryland, and one in Ohio.

Rivers in Maryland and Virginia swept over their banks and inundated large areas of lowlands during the night. Most of them were receding today. Fredericksburg, Va.,

Youth Is Drowned In Flood Waters

(International News Service)

STEUBENVILLE, O., April 27.—Ohio's first April flood fatality was recorded today with the drowning at Costonia of George Maragus, 8. He fell from a foot bridge into the rushing waters of Island Creek. Grappling hooks were used in a fruitless search for his body.

When Noah had his famous flood he rode his ark till it receded, and when he landed on the ground said Noah there is something needed, its flood prevention that we need, this thing must not occur again, and other people took it up and talked about it much and then, they all forgot about the flood until an-again they loudly cried lets make for higher drier shores. And every year we still have floods and politicians have their say of how to stop them but never do, the weather's fifty-two today.

JOHNSTOWN IS CLEANING UP

Clearing Away Debris Of Flood

Damage Of Unexpected River Overflow Is Placed At About $100,000

TEMPORARY BRIDGE GOES DOWN RIVER

(International News Service)

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., April 27.—Workmen today began clearing up the muddy traces of yesterday's unexpected overflow of the Conemaugh and Stonycreek rivers as this historic flood city relaxed, safe from another disastrous deluge.

City officials estimated the damage at $100,000, of which $12,000 represented the cost of a temporary footbridge which was washed away. Pumps were operating on the sidewalks in front of almost every building in the downtown area, drawing water from cellars.

Robert A. Tross official U. S. weather observer, said the city had one thing to fear—recurrence of rain on the Stonycreek watershed in Somerset county. Early reports were that the skies were clearing.

Schools Are Closed

Although mud was cleared away in stores, stocks were left at higher levels because of the fear of another unexpected rise.

Schools will remain closed for yet another day, it was decided. Earlier it had been decided to reopen the schools in flood sections but later authorities decided not to risk possibility of another outbreak.

Streets were reopened to traffic. The telephone company reported a flood of long distance calls from anxious relatives. Gas service was interrupted for an hour and the city heating system was disrupted by water which seeped in and around pipes.

As families reclaimed their homes, Mayor Daniel J. Shields rescinded his previous evacuation orders.

LIGONIER, Pa., April 27.—The Mellon controlled Ligonier Valley railroad suffered $5,000 damage in the flood, it was estimated today. Several washouts were reported along raging Loyalhanna creek.

PRESIDENT WILL LEAVE TONIGHT ON NEW CRUISE

Intyre will head a skeleton office staff that will set up headquarters at Galveston for the duration of the cruise. The destroyer Schenck will base at the Texas coast resort city, making its radio facilities available to complete immediate communication from Washington while the president is fishing.

Naval Planes.

Two navy seaplanes also will base at Galveston, enabling Postal Inspector Herbert Theurer to send urgent air mail pouches from the White House instantly out to the Potomac.

In addition to Elliott, the president's fishing party was expected to be confined to his two aides, Col. Edwin M. Watson and Captain Paul Bastedo, and Captain Ross McIntire, the White House physician.

Although no commitments have been made it was considered possible that during the course of his cruising along the Texas coast Mr. Roosevelt would put in at Corpus Christi—although probably not to land.

The return a fortnight hence will be made to Galveston, where the president will entrain for Fort Worth and a one or two-day stay at the home of his son Elliott. Enroute to Fort Worth, he may revisit the San Jacinto battlefield outside of Houston and also stop off at Texas A. & M. college long enough to review the cadets.

The raid was carried out under cover of darkness. When it ended, according to the Reuter report, the Convent Hospital in the stricken city was full of wounded fire fighters. The salvage corps was "helpless."

FLOOD CREST OF OHIO RIVER RACES ON TO WHEELING

was still cut off from the outside. Highways in Virginia were impassable. Bridges were reported washed out. Mayor W. Marshall King summoned the local National Guard to patrol the town and prevent looting when the power failed.

Fire also threatened Fredericksburg, fire that might spring up from some 76,000 gallons of gasoline and oil floating on the swollen river, the result of tanks overturned by the raging waters. As the pungent fumes hung over the city, warnings against fire were broadcast over the radio.

Damage at Fredericksburg may exceed $500,000, it is estimated.

Flood waters at Cumberland, Md were receding. The crest was expected at Harpers Ferry, Va., during the afternoon.

Many roads in Virginia and Maryland were blocked by water and impassable. The flood situation in the national capital was not acute but considerable damage was reported in nearby Maryland counties.

Auto Plunges Into River

Four persons were believed riding in an automobile which plunged into the Robinson river near Orange, Va.

Resort communities in southern New Jersey were lashed by gales and flood waters. Buildings were battered; piers damaged and telegraph, telephone and light wires blown down. Hundreds of automobiles were marooned along the South Jersey coastline.

Little danger was seen at Cincinnati, nard hit in the recent January floods. A boy was drowned at Steubenville, O., giving Ohio its first April flood fatality. Lowland areas were flooded at East Liverpool, O., where the water was expected to climb to 43 feet 10 above flood stage, by midnight.

More than 10,000 were reported homeless in the vicinity of London, Ontario where four died. Two trainmen were killed when their engine plunged into a river, a doctor going to their aid was drowned and an unidentified man was drowned.

The erstwhile quiescent Juniata went on a rampage and gave central Pennsylvania its first flood threats. A thousand families made ready for the emergency at Lewistown where the river was six feet over flood stage. Another six foot rise, it was estimated by Meredith Meyers, editor of the Lewistown Sentinel, would flood the Viscose plant which suffered $3,000,000 damage in the 1936 flood.

Receding At Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, April 27.—Wreaking surprisingly little damage, Pittsburgh's rivers began a rapid recession today after reaching a crest of 35.1 feet, more than 10 feet above flood stage of 25 feet.

The crest was reached at 8 a. m. E. D. T. as the rate of the rise slowed from almost a foot an hour at its height yesterday to two-tenths of a foot an hour beginning about 2 a. m. E. D. T. this morning.

And as water-logged Pittsburgh, Johnstown, and Western Pennsylvania breathed a collective sigh of relief, U. S. Weather Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicted dire suffering for points farther down the Ohio.

Wheeling, W. Va., will see a 44-foot stage by midnight as the rapid "run-off" continues in the upper reaches of the Ohio river system, Brotzman said. Wheeling was preparing for 48 feet and thousands of residents were moved from Wheeling Island, a perennial scene of floods.

Pittsburgh merchants were amazed. They looked out from behind bulkheads and sandbag parapets in surprise at the small amount of damage which, for the most part, amounted to flooded cellars from which merchandise had been removed. Today's crest was higher than the 34.5 last January but of course did not compare with the 46 feet of St. Patrick's Day of 1936.

The muddy waters were leaving downtown streets here and scores of families who had been evacuated were returning to their homes.

Recede At Johnstown

In Johnstown the waters were steadily receding after reaching a crest of 17.6 feet, almost two feet above flood level. At that stage, several feet of water coursed through the downtown business section.

Last night the rivers at the "Point" here—where the Allegheny and Monongahela form the Ohio—stood at 33.1 feet. But the rate of rise had diminished from a foot an hour to half that much as rains lightened over the watershed after a constant 48-hour downpour.

At 5 o'clock this morning, the rivers reached 34.9 feet, not far from the expected crest. The rate of rise was exceedingly slow as all points upstream on the Monongahela and Allegheny reported the streams stationary or dropping.

Water seeped into downtown basements and once more the now familiar pumps were chugging away. Several stores, profiting by past experience, had their bulkheads securely in place to hold off the muddy water.

Although rainfall had lessened generally over the entire watershed, the possibility of more rain and a still greater flood was not forgotten. A 36-foot mark will bring Pittsburgh a repetition of the serious flood of 1907.

Sandbag barricades were thrown upon sidewalks in front of stores and office buildings. Street cars in the lower streets were rerouted.

Several thousand were thrown out of work when the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation closed its plate mill and eleven open hearth furnances lining the Monongahela.

Many highways were blocked by slides carrying an ever present menace to motorists.

of lowlands in nearby Prince George's county, Maryland, was covered with water. Fire Chief H. C. Leonard estimated that about 4,000 men, women and children, were forced to flee their homes. Leonard reported about 300 persons were carried from their homes in rowboats.

At Cumberland, Md., flood water from the Potomac seeped over three blocks of the business section. Business houses, expecting the flood, had removed most of their goods to upper floors.

A section of a temporary bridge at Hancock, Md., was swept away. Both Cumberland and Hancock bore the brunt of the 1936 flood of the Potomac.

STATE MOBILIZES FOR NEW FLOOD EMERGENCY

necessary appropriations enabling the national government to "go along".

Even should congress take instant action, it would probably be some weeks before Pennsylvania could reciprocate by passing the measure. Originally introduced to provide $5,000,000, the bill was amended to $8,000,000 by the house which stipulated that half of the amount be employed in central and eastern Pennsylvania. Members of the senate appropriations committee, however, said the bill will be reported out in its original form. If this is done, observers predict the measure will be a storm-center when returned to the lower chamber for concurrence in senate amendments.

Already passed and signed by the governor were measures establishing the commonwealth's right of eminent domain in obtaining private and utility-owned lands for flood control purposes.

Before the $50,000,000 bond issue can become a reality, the resolution must be passed by this and another legislative session and then submitted to a vote of the electorate.

The affair honored Miss Esther Wallace, fiancee of Ward Whittaker, and was delightfully informal. At a large table eight guests found their places marked with very attractive name cards bearing the bridal motif. Yellow and white tones predominated in appointments, with a bouquet of cut flowers for the centerpiece. White rosebuds also at the places were dainty favors.

In the afternoon bridge was played, the smart awards falling to Mrs. Henry Russell. Climaxing the event as a complete surprise to Miss Wallace was a shower of personal gifts, all of which were beautiful.

Many Enjoy "Japanese Tea" At Third U.P. Church Monday

Despite the unusually steady April shower on Monday evening, it didn't interfere with the success of the novel "Japanese Tea" given by members of the Queen Esther class in the Third United Presbyterian church. The event attracted guests numbering close to three hundred, who enjoyed to the utmost, every detail planned by the committees in charge.

Those in attendance were grouped about tables attractively decorated in the Japanese theme. Miniature Japanese gardens reflected on mirrors, formed the centerpiece. Clever favors were midget parasols and fans, while the programs were in the shape of tiny lanters. Strung overhead, were many lighted lanterns like in the Orient, the trellises prominently placed, were entwined with wisteria making the setting more realistic. The stage was also fittingly decorated, for the entertainment.

Miss Mabel Kocher, as master of ceremonies, performed her duties to perfection, an announced the program. Members of the Senior high school orchestra launched festivities, with several selections. Misses Lois and Betty Hogue, gave a vocal duet, "In Fairy Land" with Miss Cleora Brown, at the piano. Miss Jean Riley contributed for her number, "The Chapel In the Moonlight" with Miss Brown accompanist. Pep singing ensued.

World's Tonic Overcomes Long-Standing Troubles: Feels Years Younger, He Declares

Among the many statements being made daily in connection with the revolutionary new medicine, World's Tonic, none is more interesting perhaps than the one made a day or two ago by George Boggs while in Beaver Falls, Pa.

"It takes a wonderful medicine to do what World's Tonic has done for me and I had to come around and tell you about it," stated Mr. Boggs to the World's Tonic Druggist. "For many years I have been suffering from stomach and liver trouble, also catarrh, and I got where I couldn't retain acid foods at all. No matter how careful I was about what I ate I had a lot of trouble with indigestion and suffered dreadfully from dizziness and headaches every day. I practically lost all desire for food of any kind and really did not care whether meal time came or not.

"My liver was so badly out of order that it looked like I stayed bilious month in and month out, and there was a hurting across my back that scarcely allowed me a minute's peace day or night. I got so terribly nervous that I hardly knew what a good night's sleep was. For a long time the best I could do was to get three or four hours sleep a night, and I felt so worn out I could hardly look after my farm.

"The change World's Tonic made in my condition is wonderful. The stomach and catarrh trouble is gone and I am hungry at every meal. To show how my food nourishes me now, I have gained fourteen pounds. I reckon my system was just starving because of the stomach trouble. The pain across my back is gone and so is the dizzy feeling and it is very seldom that I have even a touch of headache now. I feel ten or fifteen years younger and am so brimful of new life and energy I want to be on the go all the time.

"I also want to say that World's Tonic is the most satisfactory treatment for constipation I have ever found. It is mild, doesn't irritate and is absolutely dependable.

"I am now seventy years old and I never expect to find a medicine to do as much as World's Tonic has done for me. To my mind it is the finest medicine in the world."

Mr. Boggs is one of Beaver County's progressive farmers, is a staunch member of the Methodist church, and is one of the best known and most highly respected citizens in his section. World's Tonic may be obtained at Eckerd's, Paisley's.

GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH

LONDON will replace the United States as the world's melting pot next month when kings and commoners from throughout the world will assemble for the greatest show on earth, the coronation of Great Britain's King George VI and his Queen Consort, Elizabeth.

There will be gold-braided nobles, silk-hatted statesmen, walrus mustached Cockneys, fluttering American debutantes, turbaned Indians, mothers and their children, a representative of almost every race and class in the world. Already they are arriving in England. They will remain there for weeks to come.

The coronation is a symbol of an age past; yet it may serve a useful purpose in these days of wars and rumors of war, of widespread threats to peace and progress. Few British would insist that the ritual of the coronation is more than symbolism and in this symbolism may lie a solution to many of our problems.

In the first place, the coronation will indicate to the world the great strength of the British Empire. Secondly the event will serve to unite the peoples of the Empire once more around a common symbol, their King.

More than a quarter of a century has elapsed since British subjects swore allegiance to a newly crowned ruler. Since then the world has seen a disastrous war, a devastating depression and tremendous social upheavals. At the end of that period Britains everywhere, either by personal appearance in London or by ceremonies in other parts of the world, promise to work unitedly.

And the British are peace-loving people. With their great strength, spread over lands on which the sun never sets, they can be a mighty factor in favor of either peace or war. We believe the British will follow the paths of peace.

FOR A MERRIER WORLD

Notes from Washington are occasionally musical. The Patent Office has granted letters to one Samuel Friedlander of Memphis, who has devised a bathtub having a door and hopes to clean up with it. No more climbing over a tub's slippery sides for the Tennesseean; one just opens the water-tight door, walks in and, presumably due to the increased safety factor, sings all the more lustily.

The Department of Commerce does its part to promote melody in the provinces by revealing that tractors are now being equipped with radio sets. Farmers henceforth can operate gang-plows and harrows blithely, the chug-chug of their tractors beating time to swing music. It may be just a trick to make the farmer work late enough to hear bedtime stories. It is more likely that politicians are to blame; they intend to make him listen to their speeches.

SIGNS OF REALIGNMENT IN EUROPE

The two major week-end developments abroad—the Austro-Italy conference at Venice and the formal delivery of the Franco-British release of Belgium from the defunct Locarno Pact—were but diplomatic agencies for the enunciating of policies increasingly evident. Yet, far distant and directly involving different countries, they have allied connotations; they imply similar potentialities; they stem from like fears of Germany.

Britain and France have now told Belgium she is no longer bound by the Lacarno treaty, which formerly included Germany and Italy but was voided by Berlin. Yet London and Paris, which since have maintained an informal interim substitute pact, will continue pressing for a formal one and hope Belgium will enter this later. Meanwhile, they restate with emphasis their intention to protect Belgium anyhow, and reassert their own well-established trans-channel unity.

Belgium's strategic geographical position and relative helplessness accentuate the significance of all that transpires in or affects Brussels. Whether the London-Paris protectorate was offered to dissuade Brussels from accepting a similar grant by Germany, or as a pertinent warning to Berlin, or to keep the still-evolving new Locarno Pact, from seeming overmuch a two-nation segregation, does not impair its definiteness.

Echoes from Venice likewise involve France and Germany, and are typically European in variety of interpretation. But these eventualities seem evident: Italy will not actively aid the cause of the Austrian monarchists, nor side with Austria against Germany. Moreover, Italy will try to dissuade Germany from further aggression in Austria or interference with the Vienna status quo, if Austria will give the Austrian Nazis some voice in the government—and particularly if Austria will refrain from making other than economic ties with Czechoslovakia, with the two of them possibly allying with France.

Here rises the latest important speculation. With Germany and Italy improving their Fascist fraternity, a greater leeway for Italy in the Mediterranean being a factor, Austria finds herself like Czechoslovakia, uncomfortably alone between two aggression-minded capitals. Allying with Czechoslovakia, while perhaps expediting a crisis, seems increasingly logical to Chancellor Schuschnigg; and with alliance thus considered, why not tie up also with France which already is on friendly terms with Russia and firmly wed to Britain? Here is the possibiity of an important realignment.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

NEGLECTING HOME JOBS

Many parents write me about the child over five or six who can't be depended on to do jobs and to help about the home. Perhaps the child always grumbles when assigned to a home task, or gets out of home responsibilities every time he can.

Suppose you have a child to whom you have assigned several routine jobs, not a single one of which he will carry through unprompted. Say he is nine. Sit down together, father and mother, and try to see what your problem is, and covenant solemnly on a program you think will solve it.

First ask yourselves if he takes responsibility for his self-care. Does he brush his teeth regularly without being told each time to do so? Does he appear promptly at meals properly washed and combed? Does he send himself to bed at a regular hour by the clock? Or does he do these things only when told or driven to do them?

Unless such routine matters of self-care have been well established you can hardly hope to get far in cultivating in him responsibility for doing an assigned regular job, such as setting the table or washing the dishes (and such things boys should do as well as girls).

In case you have been expecting him to take on duties of this sort which he does not do unprompted, you had better announce to him that they are no longer expected of him, but that you are going to help him to learn responsibility first for taking care of himself. It would not be wise even to attack many of these habits all at once. It is better for dad and mother to agree upon the one that they consider most important, and center upon that.

Tell Him What Is Expected.

Suppose it is a matter of his appearing promptly at the dinner table properly washed and groomed. Announce to him beforehand what is expected, and exactly what the penalty will be for his failure to comply. Tell him, for example, there will be two calls for dinner; that when he hears the first he is to make preparation, and when he hears the second (say ten minutes later), he is to go at once to the table.

Dad should do the same. Tell him that if he does not appear promptly then, he will have to sit alone in a chair several feet away from the table, but in sight of it, doing nothing for 20 minutes, while the rest of the family nonchalantly go on with the meal.

See that you keep your word—it will be no easy task for you. Let not a single failure of his go unpunished. Follow this scheme to the letter; then all vain talk and nagging can be wholly abolished. Severe as this scheme may seem to be, it is exceedingly more humane than the usual procedure. Best of all, the desired habit will result.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

RESTRAINT OF TRADE

The Tydings-Miller bill, now pending in Congress, seems to protect the interests of "everybody but the consumer". The measure would authorize manufacturers and wholesalers to fix minimum retail prices at which merchandise could be sold.

During the past year or two, there has been a veritable epidemic of bills similar in purpose. Literally thousands of them have been introduced in State Legislatures and a few have passed. The Tydings-Miller bill is little different from the rest save that it is greater in scope and would affect the entire nation and all of its 125,000,000 consumers.

On economic grounds, it is difficult to see how such a bill can be justified. It would put an artificial brake on the normal processes of free competition. It would attempt to make negative the law of supply and demand. And on purely practical grounds, the dangers contained in the measure should be obvious to everyone. Prices for all manner of commodities are rising rapidly. Precipitous future rises are forecast. The cost of living is reaching alarming proportions, and is increasing infinitely faster than the purchasing power of the public. Price-fixing laws would spur the ascent of the cost indices.

The National Grange, in its official clip sheets says concerning the Tydings-Miller Bill:

This could only mean one thing for the consumer—higher prices. Congress certainly is not legislating in the interest of the people in the enactment of bills of this sort.".

A law which artificially boosts the cost of living is definitely opposed to the interest of the people.

Tories Are Bit Nervous.
Apprehensive Over Coronation.
Afraid Spending Will Arouse Poor.

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Columnist

WORD FROM England intimates that the coronation is not the unalloyed joy it is represented to be.

The hard-shelled Conservatives are fearful that the unexampled financial splurge will arouse the underprivileged to thoughts hitherto alien to the English mind.

Furthermore, the new king is of a shy, nervous temperament and is not at his best in a crowd. He is subject to stage fright and stammering, as are many of us.

It is said that the script of his speech at the coronation will be written in very large type and will be simple and brief.

But beyond all this, the Tories have a fear that the coronation may recall to minds the king who was to have been crowned on this day—Edward VIII.

George VI is popular in a traditional manner, but Edward VIII represents now an anti-conservative force.

IMMUNE?

England is no more immune to anti-conservative forces than is any other country.

It is not readily conceivable, however, that Edward VIII will be a prime force in any evolutionary movement.

But his name can be used as a spear-head in an anti-conservative movement. And the Tories know it.

They know, too, that Edward, upon second thought, believes he was pushed out of the kingship deliberately. This belief of Edward's may be brought forth disastrously in some future political contest.

The Tories are in a bad spot. They wish the coronation were over with. And, worst of all, it comes at a time when they must put through an increase in income taxes to meet rearmament expenses. This alienates even some of the Conservatives.

STILL WORSE!

The worst, however, is yet to come.

Edward is to wed Mrs. Simpson.

And that will be of greater human interest import than the coronation.

Edward—who will remain Edward to the mass of British people rather than the Duke of Windsor—will see to that.

In short, Edward will have the last say—and will steal the show.

The British people, no less than the American, will enjoy it. They may shout for an American New Deal.

And that, if we may say so, will be very annoying to the Tories. Blast it, very annoying!

Today's Yesterdays—200 Years Ago Today—Edward Gibbon was born at Putney, Eng. Because he suffered much in childhood from a strange nervous affection, he had little formal education; yet he became the greatest historian to write in English.

William Smythe, professor of history at Cambridge, called Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire "one of the most extraordinary monuments that have appeared of the literary powers of a single mind, and its fame can perish only with the civilization of the world."

The work was 17 years in the writing, and for it Gibbon received only a few hundred dollars. (Like John Milton, who on another April 27, sold the copyright of Paradise Lost for the equivalent of $50!) Despite all the immortal work Gibbon did in his lifetime, he was dependent upon a small inheritance and friends for his bread. Such friends they were! The famous Mme. de Stael, as a young girl, wanted to propose to Gibbon, marry him and thus make sure that her mother would always have the pleasure of his company! He never married.

April 27, 1803—Toussaint l'Ouverture died in a French prison, a hero to some historians because he rose from slave to be emperor of Haiti. He is supposed to have led black legions to victory over Napoleon's best troops and started Bonaparte's downfall. Gibbon would not have made an error like that. In reality, 22,000 of the 25,000 French troops sent to Haiti to put down "Emperor" Toussaint died of yellow fever.

DEAR MISS MARKEL—What kind of draperies should be used in a man's bedroom? I have some chintz of a brown, tan and blue mixture but am afraid this would be too feminine for the purpose.
MADGE.

Answer—Chintz is entirely proper for a man's room, provided the colors are not of the light, dainty variety. That which you describe would be perfectly suitable.

While a man's room should never have in it anything suggestive of femininity, it need not be dismal or appointed in huge, heavy furniture. It should have a more substantial appearance than a woman's room and be quiet in color.

Dear Miss Markel—I have a small, three-room apartment which I have just completely refurnished. My front room contains a brown rug, studio couch, occasional chair and a green over-stuffed chair. The room has four windows. How should I drape these windows and in what color? Could I use lace curtains this Summer and add draperies in the Fall? Should I put one or two to each window and should they be tied?—MRS. J. V. H.

Answer—Use short, tie-back glass curtains for the Summer. In the Fall, select draperies whose color will either match the green overstuffed chair or harmonize with your brown or tan background. If your windows are grouped, one set will do for all as I suggested in a previous article, a copy of which I shall send you upon request. They may be tied back or allowed to hang loose.

Hints On Etiquette

At all large dinners, plain white place cards should be used. The hostess should be careful that the guests' names are written correctly and neatly.

ADVICE TO HUSBANDS

Don't kick because you have to button your wife's dress. Be glad your wife has a dress, and doubly glad you have a wife to button a dress for. Some men's wives have no dresses to button. Some men's wives' dresses have no buttons on to button up. Some men's wives' dresses which have buttons on to button don't care a button whether they are buttoned or not. Some men don't have any wives with buttons on to button. You wouldn't like to live in a buttonless world, now would you?

"Before parole the prisoner's record should be examined and his own mind, body, morals and aims studied carefully to determine if he is a good risk—just as insurance actuaries examine us when we seek a policy."

NEW YORK—Magistrate Louis B. Brodsky of Yorkville court, delivers a tirade against youngsters who frequent drinking places until the wee small hours:

Words of Wisdom

The snake must not be killed, we are now told. As a matter of fact, we are asked to breed it, and Boy Scouts, the Y. M. C. A. and other organizations are asked by the government to do away with the popular belief that all snakes are harmful, and to make boys protectors of snakes. Of 111 known species only 17 are poisonous. The others are valuable. They kill rats! The task is to spread a knowledge about snakes and not kill off the harmless ones, as they are a valuable asset in farming.

If organized Capital and organized Labor are the whole works, let the rest of us try a sit-down strike when the tax man comes around.

House Votes Down "Electric Chair Ripper Bill" 100 To 90

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, April 27.—Pennsylvania's oaken electric chair today stood ready for its customary grim duty, unbudged by legislative attempts to abolish capital punishment in favor of mandatory life imprisonment.

Split on principle and not politics, the house voted down the Falkenstein electric chair "ripper" bill by a tally of 100 to 90.

Earlier the lower chamber voted nearly two to one not to recommit the measure for the purpose of further study.

Motion to recommit the bill was opposed by Reps. Arthur Schor, D., Philadelphia, and E. Kent Kane, R., McKean. Shcor urged the members of the house to vote favorably on the proposal expressing "regret that Pennsylvania has lagged behind other states in this respect."

Introduced by Rep. Francis J. Falkenstein, D., Philadelphia, in the early weeks of the session, the measure went unopposed in public hearings and passed unanimous on its first two readings on the floor.

Mayor Reports Fortune Teller Has Departed

There is one less "fortune teller" in New Castle today, the man having left town today according to Mayor Charles E. McGrath.

It appears that two women had a hankering to have their "fortune" told. They paid the gentleman a visit.

Later the mayor became aware of the man's activities and he assigned Police Matron McKibben to conduct an investigation.

She visited the gentleman and had her "fortune" told after which she said she was the police matron and invited him to visit Mayor McGrath.

He did not appear so the mayor sent word to the gentleman that he should leave the city.

A report received by the mayor this morning said that the man had already departed.

Marine Hero Is Called By Death

Sergeant Dan Daly, Twice Winner Of Congressional Medal, Dies Of Heart Attack

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, April 27.—Sergeant Dan Daly, U. S. M. C., retired, one of the outstanding heroes of the Marine Corps, died today of heart failure at his home in Glendale, N. Y.

The hard-boiled ex-"topkick" of the marines, two-time winner of the congressional medal of honor, had been ill for about a week.

After more than 20 years of active service the silver-haired Sergeant Daly was placed in the fleet reserve in 1920, and retired ten years later with the grade of sergeant major, the highest non-commissioned ranking in the corps.

He was twice awarded the congressional medal of honor, once for service in China and again for heroism in France during the World war. In addition, he had been decorated by many foreign governments and was reported to have earned more decorations for valor in action than any other living man.

Sergeant Daly was 63 years old.

GIRL SCOUTS

TROOP NO. 2

About 15 girls of Troop 2 spent a very enjoyable Sunday afternoon at the Hennon greenhouses outside of Wampum. The girls went all through the houses and learned many interesting things. Each was given a gardenia and some lovely spring flowers. All the scouts appreciated Mr. Hennon's hospitality and kindness.

JUANITA TROOP

Troop 14 had the weekly meeting in St. Mary's auditorium on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. Racing and playing of various games opened the meeting, followed by patrol corners. The second class scouts were working on "Judging" and the tenderfoot class were practicing "first aid." Songs and games were the pastimes of the evening. The meeting concluded with the singing of taps.

NE-CA-HI RESERVES

A general meeting of the Ne-Ca-Hi Girl Reserves took place in the Y. W. C. A. auditorium at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening.

Announcement of the camp reunion on Wednesday evening of this week was made by Isabel Douglas. The reunion will be at the Y. W. C. A. and will be for all girls, whether they attended Camp East Brook last year or not. All must register at the "Y" for the supper, no later than this evening.

Edwinna Connery stated that for the next meeting, Monday evening, May 3, Mayor McGrath will speak to the girls on "Why Juvenile Delinquency?" On Monday, May 17, the speaker will be Mrs. Carrie Jeffrey Roberts and her subject, "Hobbies". Before that time all Girl Reserves will bring their hobby displays into the G. R. office so that there will be sufficient time to arrange them.

Devotions were in charge of Marjorie Vaughn in memory of the late Lucille Turk, a sister of Geraldine Turk, chief adviser of the club. After a minute of silent prayer an appropriate selection was read.

The club dispensed with interest groups as an expression of sympathy for the bereaved adviser.

Resisting Officer Costs Offender $15

George Lash, colored, enriched the city treasury today to the extent of $15.00 because he wasn't on his good behavior last night, according to reports made to Chief of Police Ralph Criswell by Policemen Hillers and Golis.

They reported they saw Lash and another man fighting at Shenango and West Washington street at 11:15 p. m. Monday.

They approached close in their radio car and one of the men fled. Lash was arrested.

It was necessary to place the handcuffs on Lash who, after being placed in the police car, struggled with Officer Golis enroute to headquarters.

He also tossed some uncomplimentary names at the two arresting officers, according to the report to the chief.

Today Mayor Charles E. McGrath imposed a fine of $15.00, having adjudged Lash guilty of drunkenness, disorderly conduct, fighting and resisting an officer.

"Reunion In Vienna" Is Now On Horizon

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1937)

LONDON, April 27.—A former king in an Austrian castle and an American woman in a French chateau have watched the pages of the calendar flutter slowly to earth, but today their red letter was more brightly illumined than any floodlit coronation scene.

Six month has passed since Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson stood gallantly alone in an Ipswich courtroom to obtain her temporary divorce decree.

The spark of that incident seared an empire and shot a romantic flame around the world, vacated a throne and rearranged a coronation.

And two who loved defied tradition, a government and a social system to have each other.

But now, according to the methodical turning of English court wheels, they may take the necessary steps to make their marriage possible so that Mrs. Simpson may become not the consort of King Edward VIII of England, but the Duchess of Windsor.

Time Limit Expiring

Today attorneys for Mrs. Simpson are expected to file an application for a decree absolute in the law courts. The application will request a hearing and point out there is no intervention on the records and the required six months time limit has expired.

The hearing is expected to be listed a few days from now for next Monday, the nominal day for granting absolute decrees.

International News Service learned that in spite of some anonymous letters to the king's proctor, he sees nothing to hinder granting of the divorce.

It is considered extremely unlikely that anything will turn up before the final hearing to prevent it

That is legal routine, but there is more than the judge's gavel or a swinging courtroom door to this case, soon to be listed on the docket.

The self-imposed separation of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Simpson is soon to be ended. It is the week they have mentioned so frequently in their letters and telephone conversations.

It is ironical that their own impending festival should overlap the coronation preparations for the Duke's brother, King George VI, who replaced the Duke on Britain's throne.

It is undoubtedly a fact that the Duke, with his customary tact, will not marry Mrs. Simpson until after the coronation.

Critics even suggest the Duke should not see Mrs. Simpson until after the coronation. But in any event, an eventual "reunion in Vienna" is on the horizon.

Future Of Civic Campaign Will Be Talked, Says Samuels

Future plans for raising the hoped-for $5,000 for new uniforms and instruments for the Senior high school band will be drafted at a special meeting of the citizens' booster committee in the office of Principal Frank L. Orth at Senior high on Wednesday afternoon, April 28, at 4 o'clock, it was announced today by Alec Samuels, president of the booster group.

Nearly $1,800 has been raised for the purpose so far, Mr. Samuels reported today.

It was revealed that Earle M. Craig, president of the Freedom Oil Works Company and a former resident here, has donated $50 to the fund. Craig is a son of Mrs. Eleanor M. Craig, this city, honorary president of the booster organization.

Round Speaks To Junior Chamber

He Discusses Civic Projects In Dinner Talk; Election Planned

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce heard Louis B. Round discuss civic undertakings at their dinner meeting in a downtown tearoom last night.

One of the earliest junior chamber supporters, Mr. Round has appeared several times before the group. His address last night brought out numerous projects which he believed worthy of junior chamber consideration. His talk was illustrated.

Following the address of the Pennsylvania Power company head, Ray Horton, representing the Seventh Ward Civic association, spoke briefly.

President W. Herbert Smith presided for the first time in weeks, having returned only recently from an extended business trip to Detroit. Mr. Round was introduced by Loy H. Pattersen, chairman of the committee in charge of the dinner arrangements.

The annual election of the chamber takes place at the May 10 meeting and President Smith named a nominating committee with John P. Brinton as chairman to draw up a slate of candidates.

The newly elected officers would assume their duties on June 1.

Girl Campers Will Sup And Caper At Y

Annual Camp Reunion Wednesday Evening In Local Y. W. C. A. Building

East Brook campers who are going to the camp reunion supper on Wednesday (tomorrow) evening must call the Y. W. C. A. no later than this evening because Mrs. A. B. Foster and the camp committee must know how many plates to prepare.

Miss Dorothy Stewart, Girl Reserve secretary, is planning a game for 5:30 p. m. Supper will be at 6.

Miss Helen Cooper, the new camp director, will be introduced, as will Miss Mathilda Sobeske, the new camp nurse. Misses Louise Davies and Peggy Griffith, who are returning to the camp council this year, will lead in the singing of camp songs.

A group of old campers, the Misses Jean Waddington, Isabel Douglas, Joan Thompson and Jerry Flick, will give an original camp skit. All in all it promises to be a jolly evening for everyone.

New Castle girls are reminded that they must register for camp if they wish to be sure of a place this year. Last summer many who wanted to go at the last minute were unable to get in. Girls from out-of-town who have been to Camp East Brook other summers will be placed on the waiting list as soon as their registration fees are received.

After May 15 the registration will be thrown open to girls of other cities. Previous to that it will be restricted to local girls.

The camp committee is very glad to have girls from other cities at camp because it broadens friendships of the local girls, but they wish to give special opportunity to the New Castle girls until May 15.

Noted Artist Holds Age Well

James Montgomery Flagg Is No Spring Chicken But He's Shy Of Gray Hair

TOURING RADIO CITY IS COSTLY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 27.—James Montgomery Flagg continues the Ponce de Leon among artists. Somewhere he seems to have tapped youth's eternal fountain. At an age when limners have put away their drawing boards, he is doing more work than ever before, and with a zip.

O. O. McIntyre

Not that he is a Methuselah, but he is certainly no spring chicken. Yet he hasn't a gray hair or a suspicion of thinning in his tousle of wavy locks. And his mind has the speed of a roulette ball. He dresses as becomingly as any juvenile on the stage or screen. Indeed, he sets many styles.

He and his fellow artist, Arthur William Brown, were first in exploiting the colored collar to match the shirt fancy. He is a lively partner at tennis and the "life of the party" on those annual jaunts of New York artists for two weeks of caper at Palm Beach.

A tireless worker, he will sit at his tasks all day, dance the night away and be a willing fourth at one of those suddenly congealed quartettes at sun up. Or he may go up the gang plank at hour's notice to see Paris again or fly to Hollywood to act and paint picture of Dietrich.

Visitors to Manhattan are now paying $150,000 a year to go on the hourly walking tour of Radio City with uniformed guides. It has become a greater sight-seeing magnet than the statue of Liberty, the Aquarium, Central Park, Bronx Zoo and the Empire State building. A little known but instructive trip is the dollar boat excursion around the island in summer. It gives the geographical outlay that nothing else does. Otto Kahn used to take his European visitors on this circle of the town before he introduced them to Fifth Avenue dinners, theatres and opera.

Jacob Ruppert, the brewer and ball magnate, is regarded by many as the best dressed middle-aged New Yorker. He goes in for sombre shades, blue serge, dark browns and ash gray ensembles and his ties are of dignified sedateness, but he is always so meticulously groomed people turn as he passes along. Another middle-aged dresser of notable sartorial distinction is Joseph E. Widener. To my mind the world's best dressed man was the late Jean Patou. Paris dressmaker. His surtouts were a study in color blending. I used to stand outside his establishment in the rue Florentin to watch his arrival and his symphony for the day. It was never disappointing and he never repeated.

Harlem is in the throes of a brightening up as result of the World's Fair in 1939. The long, shabby 125th street and its approach to the Tri-boro bridge will be the main artery to the Fair. And already the thoroughfare is being made over. Cheap john stores are making way for sound and expansive enterprises and real estate values in the area are decidedly on the up beat after a long period of stand still.

The passing of Frances Marcosson was a crushing blow to her husband, Isaac Marcosson, traveler and writer. Red haired, beautiful and an animated conversationalist, she presided as hostess at Marcosson's select little dinner parties to world notables. When she became ill a year ago, he gave up all writing and was constantly at her bedside, save for a walk around the block each sun-down. Their devotion made them remarked as "the ideal match."

Bathroom decor takes on the sudden style change almost of Milady's frock. There was a period when the all-white bath was the thing. Then came coral pink affairs, robin's egg blue and color combinations of yellow and green. Today the smartest bathrooms are black and beige—the tub and washstand of the darker shade.

Most Metropolitan dramatic critics have a hobby that relieves the rigors and tedium of incessant first nighting. Brooks Atkinson of the Times is an ornithologist and has authorized several volumes on bird lore. Gilbert Gabriel, who is also an art critic, turns out a novel or a motion picture between seasons. His wife is also a painter. John Anderson, of the Journal, is a bibliophile and his wife is an art critic. John Mason Brown, of the Evening Post, is a lecturer on the drama. Young Richard Watts is a student of Russian literature and idealogy and has made several trips to Russia. Richard Lockridge of the Sun writes those amusing vignettes in the New Yorker and Burns Mantle is interested in horticulture at his Long Island place.

The list of ten best dressed men in New York prepared by a tailor's association had a second list of those who just missed. I was on the latter list. It must have been the red edge on the cuffs of those black mittens.

AROUND CITY HALL

Although the city has requested the WPA to approve a project whereby the main sanitary sewer in the Seventh ward will be repaired at a total cost of approximately $50,000, this does not imply that the work will be started, although Councilman Alexander and Engineer Throop believe work on the sewer is imperative. Both have asserted that until the sewer is repaired, operations at the plant cannot become normal.

They pointed out that the line needs repair and owing to spring (cold) water entering the line operations at the plant cannot become normal because the water must be a certain temperature.

Considerable surface water works into the lines and crowds the plant. According to Throop, it may be necessary at some future time to install pumps which he estimated some weeks ago, would cost about $13,000.

Mayor Charles E. McGrath and Councilman James L. Fink asked Throop if one of either the proposed improvements would be sufficient to alleviate plant conditions. Throop would not say that it would.

The mayor and Fink made it plain that while they voted for the requested approval this does not mean they will vote for the actual work without a conference being held with state health authorities.

Everything that is done at the plant must pass state health authorities inspection hence their desire to know every angle before they make any vote to spend a large amount of money.

Alexander suggested that council ask for approval of the project and then if things were ironed out satisfactorily work could be started, thus saving the city at least six or eight weeks time which is usually required by the WPA before approval of projects can be secured.

The director of property, Alexander, made it plain that in his mind there is no question about the necessity of repairing the Seventh ward main sanitary sewer as early as possible.

The city engineer in estimating the cost said the city would be required to pay about $20,703.65 and the federal government, $30,030.50, making the job minus the pumps, a $50,724.10 project.

The city also voted to request the WPA to approve two other projects, namely, a storm sewer in Albert street and Clenmore boulevard and a sanitary sewer in Crawford avenue. He estimated the total cost of a storm sewer in Albert street between Fairmont avenue and Clenmore avenue and then running west in Clenmore avenue from Albert to Mercer streets at $19,822.15, of which the city would pay $6,628.00. The cost of the sanitary sewer in Crawford avenue would be $12,665.46, of which the city would pay $2,891.76.

Petition from Pennsylvania avenue residents requesting that the Big Run be made flood-proof indicates the people on the South Side are anxious to have the flood menace eliminated. The city engineer, Glenn R. Throop, claims the government engineers will not approve the proposal which was submitted months ago. The government engineers advise the WPA in matters of this kind and according to Throop, it is seldom their suggestions are over-ridden. According to a letter received by council some time ago it would be necessary to make alterations in the bridges at the point where the Big Run flows into the Shenango river. However, as late as last week the city engineer was in conference concerning the Big Run. Just what will be the final outcome is not known at this time.

One of the factors in future city-WPA projects will be the new WPA regulation that, before approval is given by the WPA on any project, the city must agree to complete any work under way and not finished by June 30—providing the WPA shoulr cease work on that date.

Dr. William L. Steen, health officer for the city, stated Monday that unless establishments serving liquor to patrons, obey the sanitary laws he proposes to report proprietors to the State Liquor Control board which means, the health officer stated, that there is a probability of punishment.

The administration's measure to put state milk control on a permanent basis passed the house of representatives at Harrisburg yesterday with scarcely a ripple of opposition. The vote was 185 to 9. Regulation of the milk industry has been on an emergency basis. The present two-year act will expire Friday, according to the dispatch from the state capital.

SUGARLOAF PEAK

Do you know that Sugarloaf Peak in Luzerne County, rises from the center of a beautiful valley to a height of 1,666 feet?

A post office was named for this peak. The town, however, is Tomhicken, about 10 miles west of Hazleton off Route 93. From the top of this peak, one can view the scenic panoramas in all directions. The major portion of the mountain is under cultivation.

Just east of Conyngham is where the Sugarloaf Massacre occurred in 1780. The Indians and Tories surprised and massacred 15 Revolutionary soldiers under the command of a Captain Klader. A monument was erected by the Sugarloaf Historical Society. The marker contains the names of the 15 soldiers who were killed by the Indians.

Two Indicted At Somerset

Grand Judy Indicts Two On Charge Of Attempted "Fixing Of Jury"

(International News Service)

SOMERSET, Pa., April 27.—Two men were under indictment today for an alleged attempt to "fix" the jury that found State Trooper Stacey Gunderman guilty of second degree murder for the alleged "third degree" death of Frank C. Monaghan, 64, Uniontown hotelkeeper.

The indictments, charging corrupt solicitation, embracery and bribery, were returned by the grand jury against R. E. Buckman, a private detective, and Thomas Courtney, a coal operator.

Witnesses against them were Lieut. John Tomek, of the state police; John Sleasman, Somerset, and three jury constables, Bert Landis, Adam Berkebile and S. N. Lowry.

The two men were accused of having attempted to create an opportunity to approach the jurors by offering the jury constables money.

A perjury charge against Alex Frerichs, Uniontown newspaperman, accused of perjury, was continued until the September grand jury. Frerichs was charged by Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti with giving different information to the Gunderman jury than he did to the grand jury at Uniontown.

Flood Control Demands Louder

Flood Now Raging In Entire Middle Atlantic Area, Time For Action

CABINET MEMBERS EMPHASIZE NEED

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 27.—New and menacing floods in the whole middle Atlantic area brought additional demands in congress today for greater flood control appropriations, irrespective of budget conditions.

From their offices in the capital, and from the upper floors of a hotel where the annual Rivers and Harbors Congress was in progress, members could see the swollen Potomac creeping up into the streets along the waterfront.

Emphasize Need.

Two members of the cabinet, Secretary of War Woodring and Secretary of Commerce Roper, told the rivers and harbors convention, the federal government should attempt more control. President Roosevelt's message to the convention emphasized the need for a broad-gauge federal program, but he was silent as to concrete appropriations at a time when he is concerned with holding down expenditures.

Senator Copeland (D) of New York ,insisted that congress appropriate at least $60,000,000 for flood control at this session, although the budget bureau recommended only half that amount.

Rep. Voorhis (D) of California went further. He appealed for a $2,500,000,000 long range program, upon which a start should be made immediately.

Where To Get Money.

Congressional leaders who hold the purse-strings, however, were counselling caution and moderation in view of the budgetary situation. Speaker Bankhead said he did not believe large appropriations would be possible for the next few years unless some way is found of getting new money to finance the work.

An appeal to congress to carry out its flood control program was made today by Senator Overton (D) of Louisiana, before the congress.

He sharply assailed the attitude of his colleagues toward the partly completed program, and called for congressional appropriations for projects authorized in the omnibus flood control act of 1936.

No Action Taken.

Declaring the federal government has failed to respond with sufficient promptness to the obligations imposed upon it by the recurrence of great flood disasters, Overton said:

"The omnibus flood control act, approved 10 months ago and enacted, stands today practically a dead letter law.

"Not a single dollar has been appropriated by congress to carry into execution a single project authorized by this act. The sum total of funds dedicated to the brave array of flood control projects, provided by the omnibus act and stretching across the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, has been a paltry $6,000,000, allocated out of the relief funds of 1936.

"This is all that has been provided for carrying into execution an act authorizing an appropriation of $310,000,000 and contemplating an expenditure of $50,000,000 during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937."

Davenport Family Circus Thrillers

The "greatest riders in the entire history of American circuses" is the unique distinction enjoyed by the renowned Davenport Family, whose repertoire of amazing thrills on horseback, forms one of the equestrian features of the great Hagenbeck-Wallace railroad circus, coming to New Castle on Friday, May 7.

For over 60 years the name Davenport has been associated with circus riders and the big shows of the country. Now in the fourth generation this remarkable family has been able to adhere to the same pace, which placed it in the front rank right after the Civil War. Orrin Davenport, manager of the act ever since he left school, is now the equestrian director of Hagenbeck-Wallace but is very active in guiding the destines of this famous combination.

The Davenports are only one of the great American riding troupes with Hagenbeck-Wallace. In addition there will be the Hodgini Family, the Freemans, the Josephs, Rose Wallet, and Mlle. Bedini. Principal horse displays will be directed by Orrin Davenport, Jack Joyce, and Joe Hodges. In one number over 50 pretty girl riders will appear on the hippodrome track and in the various rings.

Terrell Jacobs, the Lion King, Jeanette May, "Europe's Darling of the Air," and Cheerful Gardner and his five herds of performing elephants are other features.

St. Vitus Dinner Wednesday Night

Large Crowd Expected At Twenty-Eighth Annual Event In The Cathedral

AFFAIR TO START AT FIVE O'CLOCK

Headlining this week's list of social events is the twenty-eighth annual St. Vitus dinner and entertainment which will be held in the Cathedral, Wednesday night.

The Rev. Fr. Nicholas DeMita, pastor, who started these affairs some 28 years ago, today stated that this year's occasion will be one of the biggest and most successful affairs ever sponsored by the south side church.

Tomorrow night is the night when New Castle's outstanding Italian-American cooks plays hostesses by serving a genuine spaghetti dinner "a la Napolitan." Everything from the antipasto to the salads will be prepared and served in Italian style. The menu reads something like this: Italian antipasto, spaghetti a la Napolitan, meat balls, roast, peas a la ragu, ice cream, cakes, coffee and salads.

Promptly at 5 o'clock, the first few miles of spaghetti will be served. From then until 8 o'clock, yards and yards of the famous Italian food will be served to more than 2,000 persons. During dinner, a delightful program will be presented. Several of New Castle's leading vocalists will offer selections, the Rev. DeMita stated. Women parishers of St. Vitus church will prepare and serve.

At 9 o'clock, dancing will get underway. For those who do not crave to do the light fantastic, General Chairman Rev. S. Anuskiewicz has prepared a program that will suit the most fastidious persons. Bingo will be one of the principal pastimes. Several other novelties have been arranged. During the course of the evening, prizes will be awarded.

Judging by the elaborate plans, those who attend will enjoy a most delightful evening. The proceeds will go towards redecorating the St. Vitus church, the Rev. DeMita announced.

RAINY WEATHER

Did you ever stop to think,
Without rain we'd never have a drink?
That nasty rain that makes us so wet and cold
Is far more precious than silver or much gold)
There is something else just try to deny,
It's rain that puts the rainbow in the sky.
There would be no trout, or stream to cast your fly and hook
If rain didn't feed the springs that make the mountain brook.
It's rain that makes Niagara Falls, where many people go,
And rivers rise their banks to overflow.
What room have you to complain
When clouds shower us with April rain;
And my best bet would always be
That every drop of rain finds its way back to the sea.

Roosevelt Orders No Federal Employe Enter Market For Speculative Purposes

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 27—President Roosevelt today issued an order to the general effect that no government officer or employe shall deal in the stock market for purely speculative purposes.

In a letter to President Harry B. Mitchell of the civil service commission, Mr. Roosevelt declared:

"I believe it to be a sound policy of the government that no officer or employe shall participate directly or indirectly in any transaction concerning the purchase of corporate stocks or bonds or of commodities for speculative purposes, as distinguished from bonafide investment purposes.

"Engagement in such speculative activities by any officer or employe whether under the competitive civil service or not, should be among the matters considered by the heads of departments and establishments and by the commission in passing upon questions concerning his qualifications for retention or advancement.

"I would appreciate it if you would take steps to make this known throughout the government service."

Erie Minister At Youth Rally

Rev. Richard Harvey To Be Heard Again Tonight At First Presbyterian

REV. RICHARD HARVEY

In spite of the inclement weather a large crowd was present at the Youth Conference which opened last evening in the First Presbyterian church on North Jefferson street.

Rev. Richard Harvey, of Erie, gave a powerful message on "What Am I And Why Was I Born". His text was taken from Matthew, chapter 6, verses 25 to 30. At the close of the service many of the young people were found at the front of the church surrendering and consecrating their lives to Christ.

During the evening two special messages in song were given; a solo by William Fletcher of the First Baptist church, "I've Found a Friend", and a trio composed of Josephine Jenkins, Marion Butler and Betty Evans representing the Alliance, First Presbyterian and Third U. P. churches respectively, who sang "Jesus Is Mine".

The conference will continue this evening at 7:30 with Rev. Harvey speaking on the subject "What Is Truth And How Shall I Find It?" The song service will be again in charge of Harry Sloan and two special numbers will be given; one by the Tanner sisters of the Savannah M. E. and Misses Margretta Lewis and Marion McKenzie of the Primitive Methodist church. This will be the closing service of this youth rally, conducted and sponsored by the Union Young People's Society of New Castle.

Inspection Of Troop Occurs

Annual State And Federal Inspection Conducted In Armory Last Evening

GOOD IMPRESSION MADE BY TROOPERS

Members of Troop F., 103rd Cavalry, PNG, came throught the annual Federal and State inspection last evening with flying colors, and the troopers and their officers were complimented by the inspecting officers on their condition and appearance.

The inspection took place in the Armory on West Washington street and was conducted by Col. Homer A. Groeninger, senior cavalry instructor for the state, who represented the Federal government; and Col. Robert Morris, Chief of Staff of the 28th Division, who was inspector for the state. They were accompanied by Major Edwin J. Alberts, squadron commander.

The troop has been working under a handicap due to the unsettled condition of the new Armory Building, and under the circumstances made a favorable impression upon the inspecting officers.

Incidentally, it was the first time that the Troop has ever been inspected by two colonels, it was stated.

Preceding the inspection period in the Armory, the officers inspected the stables and drill field at Scotland Lane. Everything was found in excellent order.

The Troop has enlisted four new recruits and is now virtually up to peace time strength, Capt. George F. Seyffert, the Troop Commander announces.

MILK CONTROL LAW IS LIKELY

Expect Legislature Will Pass Measure By Friday For Pennsylvania

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, April 27—A defiant bloc began to wilt today under the pressure of the Earle administration, determined to return to its virtual form and pass by Friday a new milk control law for Pennsylvania.

Resorting to every known means of parliamentary and political strategy, Democratic leaders raced against time to revamp a drastically amended measure, push it thru the legislature, and still give Gov. George H. Earle time to sign it and appoint a new milk control commission for senate confirmation.

Introduced by Rep. J. Harold Arnold, D., Fayette, the measure was approved by the house last night. Sent to the senate, the bill was referred to the state government committee rather than the agriculture committee, thus striking the first blow at the insurgent Democratic bloc.

Chairman of the agriculture committee, to which the bill would go normally, is Sen. Weldon Heyburn, Independent Democrat, Delaware, who was co-leader in the movement to emasculate the administration bill.

The measure, still in its amended state, was ready for second reading in the senate today. When it comes up, Democratic chieftains were expected to offer amendments, returning the bill to some semblance of its original form.

Stamp Notes

Postmoster General James A. Farley has announced that another souvenir sheet of postage stamps has been planned in connection with the coming convention of Philatelic Americans to be held in Asheville, N. C., from August 26 to 28, inclusive. The denomination and subject matter has not yet been determined.

A new stamp is about to be issued bearing a portrait of President Edde of Lebanon in large upright format. At the top of the design appears a cedar tree with a sitting lion on one side and a tiger on the other, symbolizing the time when the Lebanon was covered with forests which abounded in wild beasts. At the base of the stamp a Phoenician galley typifies the ancient glory of Lebanon.

Stamp collectors from New Castle have received a call from the free public library to display their collection at a special hobbies exhibit being held this week. Full details may be secured from Miss Alice Joyce, children's librarian.

Collectors who are watching for the government manual, "A Description of United States Stamps", will be pleased to learn that the latest word from the postal department states that this booklet has not yet gone to press, and no definite date for issuance has been set.

A real collectors exhibit of postage stamps has been planned by Radio City, New York. This exhibit will be devoted entirely to the display of collections, and no space will be allotted to dealers and no advertising space will be sold. This exhibit will be from October 2 to 10 inclusive, and will be sponsored by the New York Museum of Science and Industry in Rockefeller Centre, and will include collections of the foremost philatelists. INSPECT NEW DAM
(International News Service)

BRAEBURN, Pa., April 27.—Government engineers today were inspecting the new dam here for possible leaks as a result of the flood. Washing out of the main road to Vandergrift necessitated a detour over a hill road.

Wear Holsters To Probe By Senate

Are Brought To Washington By Kentuckians Subpoenaed In Investigation

PROBE VIOLATION OF CIVIL RIGHTS

Central Press

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, April 27.—It is an edifying thing to see capitol police "frisking" witnesses and suspicious-looking listeners at a senate investigation for possible firearms.

We all know that there are local backwaters in this country where such searches occasionally are deemed necessary at the entrances to district court rooms when hotly-contested cases are pending.

But imagine rival groups of gunmen getting up and shooting out some difference of opinion in the presence of a congressional committee, in session in the senate office building, right here in Washington!

HOLSTERS WORN

Well, as news dispatches have related, that's what capitol police were apprehensive of following the examination, by Senator Robert M. LaFollette's inquiry concerning civil rights violations, of witnesses from the Harlan county (Ky.) coal area.

The capitol police didn't find any firearms. The witnesses apparently had the good taste to leave their "shooting irons" at their hotels, or somewhere.

But the police did find holsters.

Need I say that, in referring to such a situation as edifying, I speak "sarcastical"?

OLD FEUDS

How such conditions can continue to exist in the midst of a supposedly civilized country is puzzling.

They're not new.

Feuds have been known to prevail in Harlan county (Ky.) probably back in the early 1800's.

I investigated it a few years ago.

Senator M. M. Logan of Kentucky described it to me as a survival of primitive Americanism. The Kentucky mountaineers, he pointed out, are mighty purely Anglo-Saxon. He conceded that they are annoyingly homicidal—not alone relative to labor issues, but generally.

Good folk, nevertheless, he reasoned.

Eastern Kentucky's judges and prosecutors and sheriffs have been elsewhere and civilized—but it's only a thin veneer, the senator commented.

And he wasn't without considerable sympathy with the first Anglo-Saxons in this state, he admitted—not with homicide, but with the people's general psychology.

IN CAROLINA

The ruling class in the south can be perfectly lovely.

Half a decade ago I visited the Carolinas, just after the police chief had been slain in a labor riot.

Getting off my train, I went straight to the secretary of the local chamber of commerce, Joe Wray. "I've come to you first," I said And he took me initially to the jail, to see the imprisoned rioters. He thought I should hear their side, to begin with.

They tell me I wouldn't receive the same consideration in Harlan county (Ky.).

If Harlan, Breathitt or other adjoining counties (Ky.) feel otherwise, they can say so.

PREPARE PAVING PLANS

Council on Monday instructed the city engineer to prepare plans and specifications for the paving of Logan street between Park and Moody avenues. The city will then ask for bids and the award will be made to a contractor. It is not a city WPA project.

Taken by death, Frank W. Doutt, 53, well known partner in the J. C. Doutt stores, suddenly at his home in Beaver. He was born in Lawrence county, went to Beaver county 20 years ago. Mrs. A. E. Adams, Jr., active young clubwoman of Youngstown, O., died following a sudden heart attack, at the age of 34 years. Daniel B. Harris, 78, oldest justice of the peace in Mahoning and Trumbull counties in Ohio, died at Youngstown hospital.

"There is no birthday gift I would enjoy more than an airplane ride," Mrs. Eva Mathias Scott, former Sharon resident, said in an interview at her son's home in Warren, O. She will celebrate her 82nd birthday anniversary June 11. "I took my first ride when I was 80 and I want you to know I really enjoyed it."

A native of Orangeville, O., who became one of the best known Baptist ministers in the Southwest, was claimed by death last week. He was Dr. J. B. Palmer, of Galveston, Tex., 85 years old. He had many friends in Sharon and visited there every summer.

Mistaking the tracks of the Erie railroad at Sharon for a "corduroy road" resulted in J. O. Bowersox, 62, of Youngstown, O., being held for court on a driving-while-intoxicated charge.

Brakemen on the Cotton Belt railroad need no longer fear cold and snow and if they get tired on the job they can rest while working, according to a story out of St. Louis. The Cotton Belt will install electric foot warmers and spring-cushioned seats with back rests on all locomotives, in accordance with an agreement with the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

High water finished what a truck driver started on the Harris bridge spanning the Slippery Rock. A few days ago a truck driver hit the bridge so hard that the entire structure collapsed into the creek, taking the truck with it. On Monday the high water swept the wreckage clear of the abutments, turned it over and floated it down stream with the truck under the wreckage. Monday evening the truck was hidden by the high water and only the longer steel girders of the bridge were showing.

The bridge has been called Harrison bridge erroneously. It was named for Samuel Harris, an old timer in this part of the Slippery Rock valley. Over 60 years ago he was a large land owner along the Slippery Rock and the ford across the creek was known as Harris ford.

The bridge was built in 1878, but as far back as 30 years ago it was felt to be unsafe. Farmers hesitated to take heavy loads of hay across the light bridge, but in the past five years it has held heavy loads of coal, up until the crash.

Another bridge on the Slippery Rock which is even lighter than the Harris bridge is the Armstrong bridge, a mile below the Harris bridge. This bridge also has been thought to be unsafe for many years and if coal trucks now detour around over the Armstrong bridge, some bright afternoon a truck will come off the grade and drop it into the creek.

The county commissioners are not sure just what will be done in the way of rebuilding the Harris bridge, but the farmers and coal operators in Perry township are already urging that the bridge be rebuilt immediately. The road is a short cut to Portersville and runs through a scenic section of the Slippery Rock creek. The bridge was just about 150 yards above the upper end of the Heinz House camp.

In court room number one Monday before Judge W. Walter Braham the petition of George Ziogas, of Pulaski, to have his name legally changed to George Pappas, was heard. The petition was granted after a short hearing. Mr. Pappas came to this county in 1909 and worked in a number of states. While in Pocatella, Idaho, a timekeeper on a railroad wrote his name Pappas, as there were a number of men on the job by that name. He kept the name and has worked for the Erie railroad for 21 years under the name of Pappas.

James A. Delaverson filed a libel in divorce on Monday from his wife, Mary Amato Delaverson. The couple was married on September 12, 1934, according to the libel in the office of Prothonotary and Clerk of Courts John A. Edgar, and were then residents of Illinois. The charge is desertion.

Stone Memorial Still Uncompleted

Unfinished Sculpture On Hillside Heralded To "Surpass Pyramids"

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga., April 27.—Hundreds of tourists daily come here to gaze at the unfinished sculpture that was once heralded as "an American monument to surpass the pyramids."

On the sheer side of 700-foot high Stone Mountain is the partly-carved figure of the Confederacy's General Robert Edward Lee, hat in hand, calmly looking northward.

This was planned as the central figure in a tremendous gray granite memorial to the valor of Southern troops in the war between the States.

Today at the base of the carving is a great pile of blasted stone, left when work was abruptly stopped for a third time three years ago.

Curious tourists who pay a dime to peer through a pair of field glasses are told that Lee's companion figure on the rock is that of Confederate President Jefferson Davis, which will not look so much like Abraham Lincoln when the bushy beard that was left is chiseled down.

Still Hunts Luck With 3200 Clovers

TIPTON, Ia., April 27.—If four-leaf clovers are a harbinger of good luck, then Herald Eves should be more than fortunate. He has found 3,200 such clovers.

When Eves started his quest for the lucky clovers 21 years ago, he started placing them between the leaves of a copy of Horatio Alger's "Strive and Succeed." The volume now is filled. Eves also has 11 six-leaf clovers.

REFERRED TO BOARD OF TAX REVISION

Clarence Miller of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation on Monday requested council to exonerate the company of a $5,500 assessment on a brick building and office of the company which he said were removed some time ago. Iman Samuels also asked council to exonerate him of a $20 assessment on a garage he said was removed. Council referred both appeals to the board of tax appeals and revision.

Three Convicted Bankers To Get Sentence In May

PITTSBURGH, April 27—The three defendants convicted in trials arising from a loss of $1,300,000 alleged by the government in the closed commercial national bank of Bradford, will be sentenced during the May term of federal court, it was announced here today.

Assistant United States Attorney John D. Ray, of Beaver Falls and New Castle who prosecuted the case announced the trio would be brought here "during the May term of court, probably in the last week of May, to be sentenced." Federal Judge R. M. Gibson, who presided during the trials will probably hand down the sentences.

National Music Week Starts May 2

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, April 27—Gov. George H. Earle today called upon Pennsylvanians to join in the observance of the 14th annual national music week beginning May 2.

"Notwithstanding the ever-increasing interest in music among our people," declared the chief executive from his sick bed where he is suffering from the mumps, "the observance of national music week will encourage a special emphasis upon music in the home, the school, the church, and other organizations as a vital and uplifting force in American life."

Nations have the new idea, too. Wait till the enterprising gather riches. Then arm and say: "Divide of fight."

CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE CLOSED, EIGHT TEAMS IN

League Will Start Play Sunday, May 16th, With Four Fast Games

West Pittsburg And Mahoning A. A. Voted Into League By Managers

New Castle baseball fans are in for a real treat this summer, according to the statements of the various managers of the newly organized city baseball league. There are eight teams in the circuit. The season will swing open on Sunday, May 16.

An enthusiastic meeting was held last night at the "Y". There were about 15 or 20 present. The managers were bubbling over with confidence that the league is going to be a big success. Many fine games will be played here this summer.

Fields Need Fixed.

The league will operate three times each week—Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday. The twilight games on the week nights will be seven innings. The Sunday games will all be nine innings.

An effort will be made to have the city workmen fix up a few of the fields. Most of the diamonds are in bad shape and need scraped and rolled. The fields that will be used by the league are Ryantown, Cedar street, E. & A. field, Lee avenue, Glasser field and Rosena Furnace field. Councilmen Alexander and Butler will be asked to cooperate with the league in the matter of getting the fields in shape for the opening day. "Jake" Babovsky, secretary and treasurer of the league, will contact the councilmen on the matter.

Eight Teams.

The following teams will make up the City Baseball league: Ryantown, Mahoning A. A., Sixth Ward Firemen, West Pittsburg, K. Pulaskis, Lawrence Indies, Colored Elks and South Side Board of Trade.

The Chewton A. C. asked for admittance to the league, but the franchises were closed after eight teams were accepted. The Chewton team will have the option on the first opening that occurs in the league.

West Pittsburg and Mahoning A A. were voted into the league by the managers last night.

It was voted to leave the player limit at 18 men after June 16.

The league adopted the Spaulding ball as the official league ball for the 1937 season. The schedule for the league will be drawn up next Sunday afternoon at the "Y".

Next Meeting May 10.

The franchise money along with contracts will be handed in to the league officials at the next meeting, called for Monday night, May 10, at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 o'clock. This will be one week prior to the start of the league.

The managers voted to bar all players who live outside of Lawrence county. You must be a resident of the city or county to be eligible for the league.

Catholics Are Defeated Once

South Side Basketball Team Annexes Twenty-One Victories In Season

One of the outstanding basketball teams in the city, during 1936-37, was the Catholic Five. Their record stands at 21 victories and only one defeat.

The K. Pulaski flingers were the only cagers able to mar the splendid record of the Catholics. In 22 battles the Catholics piled up 858 points against 580 for their opponents. The record shows victories over some of the fastest quintets in the county. Charles Tip Richards, former New Castle star athlete, coached the team. Gabby DeCaprio was high scorer with 308 points, an average of 14 points per game.

The record follows:

Tenpin Stars Keep Up Pace

Slanina And Straka, Winners At Indianapolis In 1936 Roll 1205 In Doubles

By GLEN R. BIRCHARD
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 27.—American Bowling Congress tournament champions have a standing reputation for never repeating but that angle was given a whirl late yesterday when Anthony Slanina and Mike Straka of Chicago, Ill., went to bat in the two-men event.

They knocked off the title at Indianapolis last year with a 1347 mark and proved almost as full of strikes in the 1937 event as they produced a 1205 to refute the trite saying "a hero one year and a bum the next in the big show."

Good Scores

Not satisfied with this they barged into the singles event where Slanina shot 656 and Straka 674. Had they been able to put their singles series into a doubles mark they would have been but 17 sticks under the total that brought them their diamond medals.

While Lydon Ericher Manufacturers of St. Paul, Minn., were carrying off best scoring honors with a 2894, Liberty Dairy of Reading, Pa., was hitting 2845 and Cozy Corners of Defiance, Ohio, was marking 2824. The team show was stolen by Frank Smith of the Solvay Recreation, Solvay, N. Y., when he clubbed out a 726 series this being best individual series in the team event in this tournament.

The 1279 of Harlan Ingwelson and Emil King of Rockford, Ill., topped all two-men figures of the afternoon and early evening. Next in line was the 1269 of Art Homer and John Macaluso of Chicago.

Joe Hucek of Chicago produced top single series of 695.

Dick Pugh Is Rifle Leader

Dick Pugh with a 194 string out of a possible 200 led the New Castle Rifle club last night at the Cathedral in a practice shoot. The New Castle club rifle league champs, will meet the Chibridge team of Greenville on Friday night at the Cathedral range.

The scores last night: Dick Pugh 194, Waddington 188, C. Pugh 186, Houck 186, Hill 184, Harmer 184, Frisbee 186, Black 181, Ziegler 169, Van Horn 181, Ferver 170, McKeown 181.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Jess Willard, the man mountain from Lawrence, Kansas, who cut down Jack Johnston to annex the heavyweight boxing championship of the world, several days ago told the writer that sooner or later, he intends to write a story, captioned, "Why I Didn't Want to be Colorful." He made this assertion after several of the boys who engaged in a chatfest had termed some of the fistic leaders as "colorful," "spectacular", etc. It is true that Jess wasn't as colorful or as spectacular as some of the other heavyweight champions. The one fact remains that Jess did cut down Johnson. If recollection serves he was quite colorful that sunny afternoon in Havana. In fact his progress through the long grind was listened to by people in all places where telegraph instruments clicked.

Now, as during the days prior to winning the title, Big Jess is just a nice big "boy." He likes to laugh and enjoy himself. There is nothing of the brawler type about him. He avoids crowds and best enjoys himself when in a room with associates who like him for himself; not because he once was champion. No one (at least, not locally) ever has heard Big Jess say any derogatory things of opponents of the past. Instead, he tosses a bouquet towards the boys with whom he has mingled in glove combat.

Jess believes that a prospect may have everything but not get anywhere unless he has "fighting sense." "A fellow may have heighth, reach, weight, speed and be smart, but he has to have that 'Fighting sense.' " he said recently. He must have viciousness. He cannot weaken at the moment when a knockout must be delivered" said the big fellow.

Jimmy Dunn, tutor of Cleveland, who sat with Willard, Bob Latera and some of the other boys about town, was the next to unfurl a rather unique story. Jimmie has had real success with boxers, mostly professional. Several of his proteges have not fought as professionals but did cast blows in the amateur ranks. Not long ago one of his former pupils strolled into his Cleveland gymnasium and addressing Dunn asked: "Say, Jimmie, how about a couple of more lessons? Dunn looked askance because the chap written of, is a coach of boxing at a college. "What do you want a lesson for; aren't you a coach now?" Dunn asked. "Yes, I am, but I would like to learn a couple of more points from you if you care to give me a couple of lessons," the coach responded. Dunn invited him to shed his clothing and the tutor taught the tutor. According to Dunn he has given instructions to four or five boys who now are boxing teachers at institutions.

The fight bug has stung Bob Latera again. Some years ago he taught Johnny Banko, Ray Ritchie and some of the other local fistic inclined but gave up boxing until recently, when he took over the refereeing destinies of Jess Willard. Several days ago he had a gymnasium cleaned up and is now giving instructions to some of the local boys to be prepared for any calls he may receive this summer.

All the good ten pin bowlers are not in New York as was evidenced by a score of 299 made last night by W. M. (Bill) Jones of West Pittsburg in a match with the Johnson Bronze keglers on the McCoy alleys. Jones toppled the pins for 11 straight strikes and on the twelfth the number six pin wobbled but did not fall. Recently Jones made a score of 268. He also bowls with the Penn Power team. The power aggregation won the title in the city league. Jones will bowl Wednesday with West Pittsburg against the Penn Power team.

Jack Doyle, the Irish thrush, will fight King Levinsky of Chicago, in a 12-round bout Tuesday night at Wembley. Doyle expects to win having stated yesterday that "I've learned to think." To prove his assertion he pointed out that in his last fight, when he was knocked down he took a count of nine before he got up. "Brains count in all things" the Irishman declared. When the Kingfish was apprised of Doyle's chatter he retorted: "Who's that cluck to talk about brains? I'll knock him out." They are heavyweights.

Tony Slanina and Mike Straka today were the last of the 1936 American Bowling congress champions to relinquish their title at New York. The Chicago pair, which topped the doubles field at Indianapolis last year with a 1,347 count, 12 pins short of the 1,359 tops scored in the current meet two weeks ago by Virgil Gibbs, Kansas City, Mo., and Nelson Burton, Dallas, totalled 1,205 Monday. Slanina did his best to retain the championship with a 663 series but Straka was off form and counted only 542. In the singles Straka toppled 674 and Slanina 656 which topped the singles competition.

Hal Price Headley's Old Nassay which hasn't received much consideration as a Kentucky Derby candidate, became prominent yesterday at Keeneland park by winning over three other Derby eligibles in a mile and one sixteenth race. Miss Tony was second and Grey Gold third. Albubble and Candlelight, also Derby candidates finished in order named.

An air mail and passenger service will connect Tokyo, Japan, and Peiping, China.

Over One Thousand Pounds Of Human Fighting Machines To Meet Wednesday

TORRANCE MEETS BIG ABE SIMON

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 27.—Without waiting for high tide, we're going to beach Mr. Jack Torrance, the human whale, promptly at 10 tomorrow evening, the idea calling for a six-round struggle with Mr. Abe Simon. This is the same Mr. Torrance who won the gruelling battle of Baton Rouge, because his opponent, a certain, or perhaps we should say a very uncertain Mr. Jack Phillips was taken unexpectedly absent.

Mr. Phillips is still absent, although this is his home town. But Mr. Torrance has decided to be with us for reasons that will not be clear until we get an eye witness picture of his struggle with Mr. Simon, who previously has been condemned not only as a blub, but a big blub. All told, there is going to be a thousand pounds in the ring, give or take a pound.

Galento vs Godoy.

Contributing to the poundage, in a ten-round main event, will be a gent with a rotund bosum named Tony Galento, who is meeting Arturo Godoy, the South American heavyweight champion. Tony has won six of his last eight fights with a knockout, but he is really a very comical person.

This unavoidably brings us back to Abe Simon, who weighs 250 pounds and is sponsored by the elite of Park avenue. This undoubtedly means that he can't fight a lick, which makes a perfect match, owing to the fact that Torrance is a great shot putter.

Loses 77 Pounds.

On the last check the bold young man from Baton Rouge, had with great self-control, worked himself down to 251 pounds.

This represented a terrific self-sacrifice of 77 pounds, so that the young man is practically sylph-like. At his athletic zenith, he only weighed 328 pounds.

In other words, if there is any point to this story, I am convinced without looking that Mr. Jack Torrance cannot fight.

Still, Hitler wouldn't use bayonets to force obedience to his will if he could do it with pressure and patronage.

Yankees Trim Athletics 7-1

Senators Lose To Boston Red Sox, Boston Bees Tame Brooklyn Dodgers

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 27—Drawing a forecast from wise old Connie Mack is about as easy as extracting a tiger's tooth with your fingers. However, after watching his Athletics take a 7 to 1 trimming from the Yanks yesterday, the ancient sage did break down long enough to commit himself as follows:

"Yes, sir, the Yanks probably will repeat. They have enough pitching even without Ruffing.

Likes Senators

"The Senators—yes, indeed, I said the Senators—are quite strong enough to finish second. I like them very much even though we did beat them three times so far.

"The Tigers look very much better with Cochrane and Greenburg back. But, dear me, it would be terrible if anything should happen to Tommy Bridges.

"Cleveland? Oh, yes, they're promising. But, they're always promising, aren't they. Yes, indeed, I think Young Fellers is a very promising prospect and should help them.

"My Athletics? Oh, we're very much stronger than last year. Better balanced, you know, and we have ever so much better pitching. I don't think we shall finish last again."

At that, the A's looked very good even in defeat. They got only six hits off Johnny Broaca while the Yanks were lacing Kelley and Ross for 13.

Boston Tops Brooklyn

However, the Senators—so highly regarded by Mr. Mack—seem to be having a tough time getting under way. The Red Sox well on Deshong and Linke for 15 hits to ring up an easy 12-5 verdict for Johnny Marcum.

These were the only American League games of the day and there was but one in the National where the Dodgers outhit the Bees, 15 to 13 but lost 9 to 5. Four Dodgers errors didn't give much help to Hamlin and Birkofer.

The most interesting sidelight to the game was the banishment of Manager Burleigh Grimes of the Dodgers by the umpire for the second time in two days.

E. S. Merchants To Meet Tonight

The East Side Merchants baseball team will have a meeting tonight at the home of Francis Craig, 919 Winslow avenue, at 7:30 o'clock, it was announced.

The following are asked to attend the meeting: Bill Kimmel, D. A. "Skid" Davies, Wehr, Frank Cray, Bill Strobel, Bernard Hook, Tom Vallely, Homer Wehr, James Ickes, John Doran, Fred Riley and Coach "Dinks" Myler. Also any others wanting a tryout with the team.

TALES IN TIDBITS

By BILI BRAUCHER
Central Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 27.—The new baseball season brings new faces—new Bob Fellers and Bobby Doerrs and Johnny McCarthys and Rudy Yorks and Mickey Owens and Jimmy Outlaws. The sports world reads the glowing stories of their doughty deeds in the minors, their promise in spring training camps, and gets a bit excited, anxious to see them perform.

The old guys watch them come crowding into the picture. For every Feller that comes up, some veteran must pack up his aged arm and begin the march back through the minors to oblivion. It is not a pleasant journey. The minors aren't so tough to a kid breaking in, but the old lads on the way down are used to better things. The old guys have been used to trains; in the minors they go back to the busses. Instead of a locker, they often find only a nail on which to hang their clothes. There are many discomforts in the minors that the youngsters don't notice, but the pitcher who won 20 games for a major league club seven years ago finds things tough.

Maybe that's why it's always a thrill to see a player like Rogers Hornsby, Al Simmons or Jim Bottomley come back under the balmy influence of spring and thump the old apple as they did in youth's golden days. They can't have much longer to go. Summer will wilt the legs right out from under them, perhaps, but they will go down fighting to the last out before the inexorable march of the youngsters.

Where's This Guy From?

The new guys are news, of course, and that's what the people in the press box are supposed to write. Baseball customers want all the facts there are to be scraped up about Bob Feller's childhood background. The old guys have been in there day after day, everybody knows 'em. There's nothing much more to be told about Al Simmons, who has traveled from the Athletics to the White Sox to the Tigers to the Senators. His heroism is history.

Sure, Simmons is on the way out. Eight years ago he was a $100,000 ball player. He cracked a home run off the flagpole in Shibe park in the biggest inning known to world series records, when the A's made nine runs to overcome the Cubs. Then a few years later he became a $50,000 ball player. The White Sox sold him to the Tigers. This year he's a $15,000 ball player, the Tigers having sent him to the Senators to make room for new men.

Old Al knows the path he's on. The next stop is the minors and a tremendous cut not only in pay, but in the comforts of existence. Hornsby knows he hasn't far to go on those 41-year-old legs. Jim Bottomley is aware he isn't going to be at first much longer.

Just a Few More Cuts.

But the old guys never are going to quit trying. They know the kids will win, but not for a while yet. Not for a few more games. "Sure Feller is fast, but let me swing at the guy a few times and I'll figure him out," they say to themselves. "I'm good for a lot of ball games."

So the old guys go out and swing, and when you see them break up ball games with home runs, you get a feeling that's something like victory, as though you were in their shoes yourself, and you exult with them even though you know, too, that this can't go on.

It's personal, I guess. We all have to grow old, too old to swing right, to run, to see well. We lose co-ordination and we get gray hairs. That must be why we like to see Al Simmons go out there and take his old foot-in-the-bucket swing and crash one out of the park to win a ball game. Old Al still can hit. Can't we all?

President Gives Approval Of Consideration Of "Little NRA" Measure

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 27.—President Roosevelt today approved congressional consideration of legislation for a second "Little NRA"—the Ellenbogen bill for regulation of the vast textile industry—on the eve of his departure for the south.

His approval broke the dam which has held in check all efforts to enact legislation dealing with wages and hours until the battle over his judiciary plan is settled.

At the same time it was indicated that the White House regards textile legislation as a separate problem—in the class of the Vinson-Guffey Soft Coal Law—and all proposals for general wage and hour legislation will be delayed indefinitely.

As a result of the "go ahead" signal given to congressional leaders, Chairman Connery (D) of Massachusetts of the house labor committee said the committee would begin hearings on the Ellenbogen bill early in May.

Local Army Man Is Transferred

Announcement is made by the United States War department that Major William E. Sankey, New Castle, member of the Army Dental Corps, now stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, has received orders transferring him to Denver, Colorado.

He will be stationed at the Fitzsimons General Hospital at Denver for service.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL.

Don't you think boys and girls that it wou'd be better to ride your bicycles someplace beside the sidewalks . . . the other day a young lady was hit by a bicycle and it might turn out to be a serious accident . . . I was quite a wheel rider in my day and I know how you all feel . . . there is hardly a safe place to ride anymore . . . do your best kids.

Since the day seems dreary we might as well talk about a dreary subject . . . of course our word on this subject can be taken with a grain of salt, since we have not experienced the adventure . . . lucky me.

There is that possibility that you can't live separated . . . for instance . . . when you part, there is always a little settling to do . . . she claims that she was the one that saved the money for the ice box and remember how she took the money on pay day and saved it for the 1924 Model T . . . she will remind you if you can't recall the instance . . . well you agree to let her have the ice box and car . . . she has to entertain you know and then there will be the time that she will have to go to a bridge party and the car will come in handy . . . but you say to yourself "what will she do when the car acts up" . . . you know that she can't get along with out you . . . she will call you from down around Wampum and that means you will leave the office and go down on the bus and help her in time of trouble . . . you see, that is one way you can't get along separated . . . on the other hand if you are together she will never call you, because the car won't run . . . in the first place you wouldn't be speaking to her and the second if she did take the car she wouldn't call you if you were the last person on the earth

* * *

Here is another satisfied classified user . . . Miss Dorothy Moore of Winter Avenue . . . Miss Moore lost her wrist watch the other day . . . she knew what to do . . . she put a little lost ad in The News . . . within 30 minutes after the paper was off the press Mr. Snyder of 704½ Chestnut Street returned the watch . . . we call that service . . . what do you say?

Market Stages Modest Technical Rally Today, Stocks Up Point And More

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, April 27.—The stock market today staged a modest technical rally, many pivotal issues chalking up gains of more than a point.

Monday's reaction, the most severe in the last two years and more, attracted some buying and a little short covering in the first half hour of trading but later the main body of stocks settled into a narrow range well above previous closing levels.

Steels, motors, rails and some blue-chip issues, hardest hit in yesterday's selling deluge, were leaders. Gains of a point and more were shown by Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific and Westinghouse. American Can spurted 3 points, Coca Cola slightly more and Deere in farm implements ran up more than 5 points at one time.

Fair-sized advances were registered by utilities, most of which slumped to new lows in the preceding session. Electric Power & Light spurted more than a point to above 20.

Generally higher levels prevailed in coppers, aviations, mail orders and oils. U. S. Rubber spurted close to 3 points before meeting light profit-taking.

Bonds were somewhat easier, with governments losing a little ground. Grains and cotton improved in a recovery movement for commodities.

LONDON, April 27.—Determined to protect the honor of the woman for whose sake he gave up the British throne, the Duke of Windsor today instructed his English solicitors to ascertain what steps can be taken to prevent distribution of the volume "Coronation Commentary" in the United States.

The book, written by Geoffrey Dennis, and commenting acidly on circumstances surrounding his abdication has infuriated the duke, who considers it casts unjust reflections upon Mrs. Wallis Simpson. He wants the book suppressed in the United States as well as in England.

His solicitors, Allen and Overy, already have taken up the matter with New York agents and are now awaiting word from them on what legal action can be taken to prevent distribution of the book to the American public.

Clevelander Speaks Before Lions Club

Lieut. Goldy, Retired Navy Man, Tells Of 'Typhoons And Hurricanes'

A retired U. S. Navy officer, Lieut. Donald Goldy, of Cleveland, spoke on "Typhoons and Hurricanes" before the weekly luncheon of the Lions club today.

Before proceeding with his illustrated talk on what causes typhoons and hurricanes and all types of wind disturbances, Lieut. Goldy explained that the weather seems suited to a navy man and said:

"I've a homey feeling down here in New Castle with all this water around. There seems to be lots of it from what I've seen."

The Clevelander came here as a personal representative of the Great Lakes exposition which will be sponsored in Cleveland again this summer. He said the show would be "much greater than last year's—and it was a success."

Two new Lions, James Peacock and Jay Jarrell, were formally initiated by the club today.

Madrid Under Heavy Shelling

By THOMAS LOAYZA
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MADRID, April 27.—Madrid was today subjected to the heaviest bombardment since the civil war began, insurgent artillery dropping shells into the ctiy for 12 hours.

More than 300 shells fell over a wide area, causing a large number of casualties and tremendous damage.

Loyalist warplanes were sent out to attempt to destroy the artillery positions, and bombs were dropped at Casa Del Campo and Garabitas Hill.

"We will see who tires out first," declared Gen. Miaja, directing the defense.

(Editors note: Reports from Madrid via Paris stated that 380 persons had been killed in today's bombing and 600 wounded.)

Would Scrap President's Plan

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 27—A proposal to scrap President Roosevelt's court plan and name a special committee to draft a new compromise, was made today to the senate judiciary committee at its secret session by Senator McCarran (D) Nevada.

McCarran, who has been noncommittal on the president's plan, recently proposed another compromise to authorize appointment of two new justices to the supreme court. He said he probably would make a formal motion to the committee later in the week to redraft the president's bill.

Senator Logan (D) Kentucky, meanwhile announced he would ask unanimous consent of the committee to end its secret deliberations two weeks from today and vote then upon all pending amendments and the bill itself.

This would bring the bill into the senate for debate about the middle of May.

Three Youthful Financiers Hold Huge Corporation

Giant Railroad Holding Corporation Goes Into New Control

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, April 27.—Control of the giant Allegheny Corporation, largest railroad holding company in the world, today rested in the hands of three youthful, little-known financiers.

Controlling interest in the vast railroad and real estate interests of the late Van Sweringen brothers was sold late yesterday by George A. Ball, wealthy fruit jar manufacturer of Muncie, Ind., and founder and trustee of the Ball Foundation, to Allan P. Kirby, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., banker, and Robert R. Young and Frank F. Kolbe, partners of Young & Kolbe, members of the New York Stock Exchange.

Although Ball stated ownership of the properties was "passing into strong and capable hands," the purchasers readily admitted they knew nothing about running railroads. All are in their early forties. Kirby is the son of Fred M. Kirby, former vice president of F. W. Woolworth Co. The other two formerly were assistant treasurers of General Motors Corp. They announced:

"We have no special obligations to any shippers, to any banking houses, or any financial group. The money which we have put into these properties is our own money."

The purchase price was not made public, but it is understood that between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 was paid for the securities controlling the 28,000-mile Van Sweringer rail system. Control had been purchased in 1935 by Ball and G. A. Tomlinson, Great Lakes Steamship Lines operator, for slightly more than $3,000,000.

New Kensington Labor Argument Back At Outset

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, April 27.—The controversy between the AF of L and the CIO over the unionization of New Kensington Aluminum workers today appeared to be back where it started.

Cross-petitions brought against each other by the AF of L and the Aluminum Workers union which bolted the Federation and joined the CIO were dismissed in a dual decision by Judge Nelson McVicar in U. S. court.

The AF of L petition brought by President William Green sought to impound $27,000 in funds which the Aluminum workers turned over to the CIO. The other, brought by the union, charged the AF of L violated its rules by using defense funds to pay running expenses.

Judge McVicar found the Federation by-laws covering payment periods were ambiguous, that the union was suspended too soon, and that the AF of L must continue to recognize it pending formal proceedings under the constitution to oust it.

COMMITTEE TO PONDER REPORT ON CORT PLAN

peared doomed because of a coalition between friends and foes of the president's plan who desire a finish fight on the issue of six new justices.

Clash On Forecasts

Senator Ashurst (D) of Arizona, committee chairman, and Senator Van Nuys (D) of Indiana, leading opponent, clashed in their forecasts of the outcome.

Ashurst said:

"I think the bill will receive ten of the eighteen votes on the committee. I believe it will be favorably reported. There is no disposition on either side, as I see it, to keep the measure in committee an unduly long time.

"And in the senate, we are assured of victory."

Van Nuys countered with:

"I'm going to renew my motion to separate the proposal to pack the supreme court from the rest of the bill. I want a decision on that motion before the committee acts on the proposal itself and I am confident my motion will prevail.

"There is every indication the committee will refuse to recommend enactment of the president's plan. On the other hand, it looks now as though the bill will be reported unfavorably.

"I believe the proposal for six new justices is deated now both in committee and on the floor of the senate."

Flood Control Board Is Called To White House For Emergency Conference

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Despite reports of receding waters, President Roosevelt today decided on a federal policy of forearming against further emergencies in the current spring floods.

Slated to leave tonight for a vacation in the Gulf of Mexico, Mr. Roosevelt called to an emergency white house conference the Flood Control Board created to administer relief and rehabilitation during the disastrous Ohio and Mississippi river valley floods last winter.

The president placed in the hands of this board control of all federal flood relief activities during his absence. Those at the conference were:

Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the National Red Cross; Gen. Malin Craig, army chief of staff; R. R. Waesche, commandant of the Coast Guard; WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins, and Thomas Parran, Jr., surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service.

Landslide Perils Highway Traffic Near Aliquippa

(International News Service)

BEAVER, Pa., April 27.—Motorists in this section were given a triple setback today in the form of flooded highways, a huge landslide, and a strike of state highway department workers.

A landslide, growing for days between Monaca and Aliquippa, rendered the road impassable during the night and highway superintendent R. M. Netherland closed it. Another slide threatened to close the road at South Heights.

Netherland sought a truce with the strikers but their reply was:

"Show it to us in black and white from State Superintendent Warren Van Dyke."

The strikers did aid in saving the department's road machinery from inundated highways.

Five score families scurried to safety as water in the Ohio and Beaver rivers continued to rise.

Several ill children and aged couples were rescued at Bridgewater. They were marooned on second floors of their homes.

DUKE WILL USE TRAIN FOR TRIP

To Forsake Air In Journey From Austria To France Next Week

By JAMES E. BROWN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, April 27—Forsaking the air to which he took as Britain's first air-minded Prince of Wales and monarch, the Duke of Windsor will travel by train when he comes from Austria to France next week, it was learned today.

He will make the trip next Monday, when Mrs. Wallis Simpson's divorce decree is scheduled to become absolute, thus paving the way for her marriage to the Duke.

The Duke is expected to reach the Chateau De Cande at Tours within 48 hours after her final divorce is granted by the English divorce court and his first meeting in six months with his fiancee will probably take place in the Chateau's turret-like entrance hall, once a penitential retreat for 16th century friars.

The marriage is expected to take place towards May 20, and International News Service was informed the question of a religious ceremony already is being discussed.

On his trip to Tours, the Duke will be accompanied only by his equerries and a few friends.

There will be no gigantic reception to greet him at Tours, it was learned, and he will probably occupy his time until the wedding by playing golf, walking and attending motion picture shows.

East Liverpool Lowlands Under Flood Waters

Ohio River At East Liverpool Is Reported At 41 Feet, 33 Feet Is Flood Stage

(International News Service)

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., April 27.—Reaching a stage of 41 feet and expected to climb to 43 feet before night, the Ohio river flooded lowland areas in this vicinity today, forcing 500 persons to flee their homes and causing suspension of virtually all work in lowland factories.

Flood stage is 33 feet.

Relief was provided by the Red Cross, which set up temporary shelters for those forced from their homes and assisted in moving many to high ground. All street car and bus service between here and Midland was suspended.

The high water has inundated lowland areas here and in Smith's Ferry, Jethro, Wellsville, Congo and New Cumberland. Three feet of water stood in the C. C. Thompson pottery here.

Engineers at Ohio river dam No. 8 said that the rapid rise of the river would be followed by an equally rapid fall.

Believe Flood Emergency Past

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, April 27.—Although the flood emergency was considered past, the commonwealth today continued to keep its forces mobilized to combat any possible recurrence of yesterday's rising waters in western Pennsylvania.

Lieut. Charles J. Hartman remained in Gov. George H. Earle's "emergency" flood headquarters directing the state's hastily coordinated agencies in place of Col. A. A. Janeway today.

"Reports from all over the state," Hartman said, "indicate that the flood emergency is over, that waters are receding everywhere but in the Juniata basin."
